Women Stage Peace March In 20 Cities

Hundreds Join Demonstrations Against A-Tests

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of women, some of them pushing baby carriages and strollers, staged a "strike for peace" Wednesday in a score of cities throughout the nation.

Nuclear testing dominated the theme. Demonstrators carried placards with slogans such as: "Save the children," "Two wrongs don't make a right—no testing," and, "Testing damages the unborn," and, "Let's live in peace—not in pieces."

In Washington, about 750 women, a few youngsters and a collie dog marched in front of the White House bearing signs urging peace and disarmament.

The dog wore a sign, "Please no more strontium 90"—a reference to one of the most feared ingredients of nuclear fallout.

One sponsor of the Washington demonstration said its purpose was to show President Kennedy: "We support his 'race for peace' and his belief that in the development of the United Nations rests the only alternative to war."

Petition For Mrs. Kennedy

A delegation left a petition for Mrs. Kennedy asking her to join in the women's campaign "to end the arms race instead of the human race."

The demonstrators took a similar petition to the Soviet Embassy, several blocks from the White White House. It was addressedt o Mrs. Nikita S. Khrushchev, wife of the Soviet premier.

Previously, five women had gone to the Soviet Embassy to talk about peace.

In New York, more than 200 women staged separate demonstrations outside the Soviet Union's United Nations delegation building and the Atmoic Energy Commission's operations office.

Among the demonstrators was blonde movie actress Carroll Baker, who carried a sign reading, "Children need milk strontium free."

Letters For Seaborg, Khrush

At the AEC building, the women left a letter addressed to Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the AEC in Washington, calling for a permanent end to nuclear testing.

The women also left a letter for Khrushchev at the Soviet building. It contained an appeal "to declare a permanent end to all nuclear testing by the Soviet Union."

Housewives, working mothers, widows and teachers participated in a demonstration in Miami's Bay Front Park. They distributed printed literature and placards. No organization was backing their march, they said.

Women Protest Nuclear Testing

"Women for Peace" demonstrators marched to the heart of downtown Cincinnati yesterday afternoon and paraded with signs around Fountain Square. The signs stressing the theme of poison milk from nuclear fallout were given added meaning by two babes in arms (AP Photofax)

Officials Report 62 Hurricane Deaths In Belize

BELIZE, British Honduras (UPI)—Government authorities reported at least 62 persons dead in this hurricane-smashed capital Wednesday night and feared the toll would go higher as rescue crews uncovered more bodies in the flooded rubble-strewn streets.

Gov. Colin Thornley estimated there were 25 persons killed in Belize, 23 more at nearby Stann Creek—where the "eye" of the hurricane passed—and 14 at Caye Caulker.

He said he feared the toll would go higher.

Thirty-six hours after Hurricane Hattie roared over the seaport town with wind gusts of close to 200 miles an hour and 10-foot waves, a United Press International newsman-photographer team found corpses marked with black flags in the heaps of debris.

Coffins were piled high in front of the police station. In the Negro area of town along the shore, wreckage was piled 15 feet high. Roads between the town and the airport were still flooded and took over an hour to navigate. The town is about 10 miles from the airfield.

The howling storm winds wrecked a prison and the prisoners were released—the most dangerous ones in the company of guards.

A stone wall around an insane asylum was flattened, but the building apparently survived the storm.

The general hospital was evacuated.

Governor Thornley estimated 70 to 80 per cent of the buildings in Belize were damaged in varying degrees. He said 10,000 to 15,000 persons were homeless in the area.

Streets in the town were impassable because of the debris.

Governor Thornley had called earlier in a radio message to the British governor commander of the Caribbean area for rescue boats and "as many troops as are available."

The hurricane was the worst in the area in 30 years.

Trumans Attend Glittering Dinner At White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Truman era returned to the White House Wednesday night.

At a glittering dinner, Harry and Bess Truman sat down with many of their old friends and colleagues to chat and reminisce about the home they occupied and the life they lived as President and First Lady for nearly eight years.

Such was the guest list that if Truman had wished, he could almost have reconvened one of his administration's cabinet meetings.

When the Trumans arrived at the White House late Wednesday afternoon they were greeted by President and Mrs. Kennedy and scores of veteran White House employes. Truman bubbled with good humor at seeing so many old friends again.

Brazil Airliner Crash Kills 48

RECIFE, Brazil (UPI)—A Brazilian airliner carrying 85 persons on a transatlantic "friendship flight" crashed in flames into a hillside near here Wednesday while coming in for a landing. Authorities said 48 persons were killed and at least 14 injured.

One of the seven persons hospitalized after the crash died later. Authorities said the six other injured were in serious condition with burns and fractures.

Survivors said the Panair do Brasil DC7C, carrying 76 passengers and a crew of nine on a flight from Lisbon, Portugal, to Rio de Janeiro, struck a tree moments before it crashed in darkness early Wednesday on a ranch about 1¼ miles from Recife's airport.

One survivor said a wing of the four-engined plane was torn off by the impact with the tree. The plane burned for some three hours after the crash.

Lisbon airport authorities said 40 Portuguese were aboard the plane and the other passengers were Brazilians, French and Dutch.

The 76 passengers had flown in from Lisbon via the Cape Verde Islands on a low-fare "friendship flight" sponsored by Panair and a Portuguese airline to promote tourism between the two countries.

Fallout Follows Expected Path, Picks Up Speed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The radioactive cloud from the Soviet Union's mighty nuclear explosion was following the expected path Wednesday night, by Weather Bureau calculations, but was picking up speed as it headed toward Alaska.

The cloud, sent up by a Soviet bomb somewhere in the 50-megaton range on Monday, was charted over the U.S.S.R.'s Siberian Kamchatka Peninsula. It was expected to pass over the Aleutian chain Thursday and reach Alaska later in the day.

Weather Bureau expert Robert Lisk said that unless the winds shift the cloud will pass across Alaska and then head over Canada, missing the rest of the United States.

The cloud started out from the detonation point at 45 miles an hour, stepped up the pace to 55 Wednesday and might reach 80 by Thursday, List said.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Public Health Service said that while radioactivity in the United States has risen to undesirable levels during the Soviet tests which started Sept. 1 they do not pose a hazard to health unless maintained over a long period of time.

Blue Scout Goes Astray, Blown Up

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Blue Scout rocket zigzagged out of control and was blown up by the range safety officer Wednesday 30 seconds after it blasted off in an attempt to orbit a satellite to test the Unit States' worldwide man-in-space tracking network.

An official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the failure will not delay plans to orbit a chimpanzee later this month. The chimp shot is the last scheduled Project Mercury launching before an effort to orbit an astronaut, hopefully in December or January.

The larger Atlas will be used to boost the space capsules on these missions.

Reds Call Off Summit Talks

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Communist party summit meeting has been called off because the Chinese Communist delegation has returned to Peiping, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The government newspaper Izvestia said the last Chinese delegates left Tuesday. Premier Chou En-lai left last week while the congress was in session and did not return.

While in Moscow Chou publicly questioned Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's open denunciation of Albania. He said it only helped Communist opponents to air family quarrels in public.

Khrushchev and most other foreign and Soviet spokesman disregarded Chou's admonition and joined in reading Albania out of the Soviet Communist camp.

It also was understood the Chinese objected to the harsh public castigation of the "anti-party" group led by former Premier Vyacheslav M. Molotov and the violent denunciation of Josef Stalin.

West Berlin Police Check Russ Papers

Measure Follows Red Guards' Check Of U.S. Civilians

BERLIN (AP)—West Berlin police Wednesday began demanding identity papers of Soviet civilians driving from Red-ruled East Berlin—just as East German police demand identification from American civilians.

There were no immediate objections.

It suits the Communists to recognize West Berlin police. They feel this is another step to converting West Berlin into a "free city"—run by West Berliners and rid of occupation authorities.

"We're always ready to identify ourselves to the West Berliners," said one Soviet citizen in West Berlin.

U.S. Objections Voiced

The U.S. government, on the other hand, has objected strongly to its civilian officials showing any identification to the East German police—the "Vopos." The reason is that the United States does not recognize the East German satellite regime and insists that the Soviet Union accept responsibility in East Berlin as an occupying power.

That was the issue that brought American and Soviet tanks face to face Friday. American civilian officils would not show their papers to East German police and used armed escorts to pass through the police lines.

It has been reported from Washington that the United States was trying to make a deal: American civilian officials would show their papers provided Soviet citizens showed theirs to West Berlin police.

Both Sides Claim Victory

Despite the West Berlin police checks, however, an American spokesman insisted there was no agreement that would change border-crossing procedure for Americans.

The tanks remained where they were after their withdrawal Saturday—within a few hundred yards of one another on opposite sides of the border.

Both sides claimed a victory—the Communists because armed Americans were not crossing the border, the Americans because they made the Russians, rather than the East Germans, intervene with tanks in East Berlin.

Three Escaped Convicts Seized

UNIONVILLE, Conn. (UPI)—Three escaped convicts were captured Wednesday after crashing through a road block during a bullet-punctuated chase.

"It was worth the try," said Nicholas A. Moccio, 26, of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Scores of police converged on this small town minutes after the fugitives from the state prison farm in Enfield were sighted driving a stolen auto through nearby West Hartford.

Moccio, Charles Timms, 29, of Waterbury, and John Fisk, 29, of South Coventry, were charged with robbery with violence, theft of a motor vehicle and escape from prison. They were held without bond and taken to Wethersfield state prison.

Foreign Minister Returns To Finland

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Foreign Minister Ahti Karjalainen returned Wednesday from Hawaii to discuss the Soviet note to Finland with his government colleagues.

President Urho Kekkonen, whom Karjalainen accompanied to Canada and the United States, will arrive Friday.

The president will make a radio speech Sunday about his trip and presumably will comment on the Soviet note which demanded that Finland negotiate on mutual defense action "in the face of mounting West German militarism."

Karjalainen declined to comment on it pending a study of the text. He said the month-long American tour had been extremely successful.

Strike Decreed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—The Labor Federation has decreed a 72-hour general strike throughout the country, beginning Tuesday, in support of striking railway men. Railwaymen are protesting government plans to turn many auxiliary services of the state-owned lines back to private enterprise.

Algeria Riot Deaths Soar

At Least 86 Dead, 130 Hurt

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Scores of demonstrators were killed and wounded Wednesday as Algerians rallied by the thousands in wild demonstrations on the seventh anniversary of the outbreak of the rebellion against France.

By official count, 86 were dead and more than 130 hurt. Unofficial reports said the final toll might be much higher.

The war, which has claimed at least 200,000 lives, thus entered its eighth year with peace hopes marred by terrorism, racial hatred, revolutionary passion and fresh bloodshed.

Most of the dead and wounded were counted in clashes with police and troops at small towns and in raids by uniformed nationalist commandos on army posts, mostly in eastern Algeria.

But 10 died and some were injured in the crash of a small French reconnaissance plane into a crowd of demonstrators at St. Arnaud. French officials did not know whether the craft crashed accidentally or was shot down.

Authorities said casualties on the French side were three dead and 16 wounded.

The official toll was the highest since July 5, the last time the rebel exile regime in Tunis called for massive independence demonstrations by Algeria's nine million Moslems. About 90 were killed and 300 wounded that day.

Thousands of Moslems, in almost solid support to the call of the rebel National Liberation Front—FLN, turned out in the big cities—Algiers, Oran and Constantine.

But in these big centers French police and troops overlooked the fact the demonstrators were violating a government ban on public gatherings and concentrated on keeping Europeans and Moslems apart. After an upsurge of early morning violence, the demonstrations slacked off and the day ended in comparative calm, although there were some afternoon outbursts.

A rebel call for a general strike, along with the Europeans' observance of All Saints' Day, gave downtown Algiers a deserted look. Most Europeans stayed quietly at home.

A short, sharp clash in the Darel-Kef area above Algiers' Babel-Oued quarter left three dead.

Seven Moslems were killed in the Algiers region. The French used tear gas and concussion grenades—some tossed from helicopters—to break up crowds in some mixed neighborhoods.

At Douar M'sil, French troops killed 14 and wounded about 20 others. At Ras-el-Aioun four were killed in a morning clash, and 18 others in the afternoon in a second attack.

The French reported similar incidents at Blida and Medea, south of Algiers, at Mila and Ouenza in eastern Algeria, and at Bougie on the coast.

South Viet Nam Troops Launch New Offensive

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP —Government troops were reported on the offensive Wednesday in the Communist stronghold where they suffered a sharp setback last September. Informed sources said 100 Communist Viet Cong rebels were killed in the new fighting.

In neighboring Laos, anti-Communist Meo tribesmen loyal to the right-wing Vientiane government were reported to have cut off the pro-Communist rebel headquarters town of Xieng Khouang from the Plaine des Jarres airfield. Reports of new Laos fighting came as representatives of East and West declared the peace of all Southeast Asia is threatened.

The new South Vietnamese government operation is in the jungle and rubberland province of Phuoc Thanh, about 60 miles north of Saigon, informants said. Communist guerrilla forces raided and occupied the Phuoc Thanh provincial capital in September in an action that demoralized the forces of pro-Western President Ngo Dinh Diem.

In London, Ambassador Ngo Dinh Luyen of South Viet Nam told British Foreign Secretary Lord Home Communist pressures against his country are mounting, but that the government is still in control of the situation.

In Geneva, Chang Han-fu, the Red Chinese delegate, told the 14-nation Laos conference the whole Southeast Asia area is on the verge of erupting into war. He said the situation has been worsened in Laos and Southeast Asia as a whole by what he termed "the stepped-up intervention of certain members" of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Bus Depot Segregation Ban Defied

By The Associated Press

Police in Georgia and Mississippi arrested Negroes who tried to use interstate bus facilities Wednesday despite a federal agency order banning segregation of passengers.

Four Negroes were jailed in Atlanta and three in Jackson, Miss., as rules issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission against bus terminal segregation went into effect.

ICC Chairman Everett Hutchinson said earlier in the week that federal court action could be expected if the commission's rulings are resisted and that criminal prosecution may be recommended.

The ICC rules were requested by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

State officials in Georgia launched federal court action seeking to have the ICC rulings set aside. They contended the orders violate the rights of states to regulate intrastate commerce since bus stations are used by both intrastate and interstate passengers.

Under the ICC ruling each bus and terminal must display signs stating that bus seats and station facilitise are available to all travelers.

A Shreveport, La., bus station manager, who refused Wednesday to remove such a sign, was charged with violating Louisiana's segregation laws and placed under bond of $250. Shreveport officials said Tuesday the city would not comply with the ICC order.

In Monroe, La., the Continental Southern Lines removed segregation signs from its bus station but a district judge issued a temporary restraining order directing the bus company to replace them.

U.S., British Compromise Plan Offered

New Leader Would Decide On Number Of Top Advisers

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The United States and the Soviet Union voiced optimism Wednesday that they were near agreement on naming an acting U.N. secretary-general in place of the late Dag Hammarskjold.

U.N. diplomats believed the six-week deadlock would be resolved before the end of the week.

The optimism centered in a new compromise plan set forth by the United States and Britain to break the stalemate over how many principal advisers the new chief should have. The plan was to leave it to him.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and British Minister of State Joseph B. Godber issued statements on it through spokesmen, after Stevenson had told Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin about it.

Near Agreement, Zorin Says

Emerging from a 1¼-hour conference with Stevenson, Zorin told reporters "I think we are near an agreement—on a very reasonable basis." Stevenson's spokesman declared: "We are optimistic."

Later Zorin met for almost an hour with U Thant of Burma, who is expected to be named interim secretary-general. The Soviet delegate then told reporters: "The situation is we are near to agreement." Asked when agreement would come, he said "maybe tomorrow, maybe today."

Zorin, who began a month's term in normal rotation as president of the Security Council, replied to another question that as soon as there was agreement, he would call a council meeting to recommend an acting secretary-general.

Diplomatic sources said the council might meet Friday morning to recommend U Thant for interim secretary-general up to April 1963, the end of Hammarskjold's five-year term.

Difference Of Two Aides

They said the General Assembly then might meet that afternoon to appoint U Thant to the post—and hear his statement as to how many undersecretaries he would name as principal advisers, which regions he would pick them from and how he aimed to work with them "in a spirit of mutual understanding."

The Soviet Union put forward the principal-adviser idea after first insisting that a three-man board with a built-in veto should replace Hammarskjold, killed Sept. 18 in a plane crash in Northern Rhodesia.

The Russians have been saying there should be seven advisers—American, Russian, Latin-American, African, Western European, Eastern European and Asian.

The United States and the Western European group have argued there should be five—all but the Eastern European and Asian.

UAW, Chrysler Strive For Pact

DETROIT (AP)—Top level negotiators for the United Auto Workers Union and Chrysler Corp., facing a Thursday midnight strike deadline, moved into a night session Wednesday in what appeared to be an all-out effort to reach a new three-year labor contract.

During a recess following nearly eight hours of bargaining, UAW President Walter P. Reuther said, "our conversations during the last hour and a half have been helpful."

Reuther said the negotiators "were more hopeful" now that five subcommittees holding parallel sessions on difficult contract problems "will be able to move on."

Earlier, Chrysler's vice president for personnel, John D. Leary, agreed to the procedure to have subcommittees expedite negotiations.

Asked about the prospects of a settlement before the strike deadline, Reuther said, "I always live in hope. It's amazing what people can do in a few hours if they're in the right frame of mind."

Leary said, "I don't know yet," when he was asked if there had been any progress.

The UAW Executive Board Tuesday night set the strike deadline after Reuther reported "a greater sense of urgency" was needed.

Initial Experiments To Test 'N-Bomb' Idea May Be Made In Nevada Caverns

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first tentative experiments to try out the theory of a neutron bomb, to kill without leaving wide destruction, may be made in Nevada underground test caverns.

When preliminary field research might start or whether it had begun was a tightly held official government secret Wednesday.

But the theory of an "N-bomb" seemed to suggest strongly that the first effort would be to find out whether the nuclear reaction, in actual test, would be like that worked out by slide rule, computers and the projection of nuclear physics facts.

The idea is that a precisely harnessed nuclear detonation can be made to produce a burst of intense radiation by high-speed, deep-penetration, lethal neutrons—without also creating the intense shock, heat effects and radioactive contamination of present bombs.

Various papers and comments by nongovernmental and former government experts during the past several years have suggested that such neutrons could penetrate steel armor and even several feet of concrete. Soviet nuclear physicists have speculated similarly.

Officials from the White House down declined to comment on reports published by the New York Daily News and the New York Journal-American that the neutron bomb project has high priority in the current U.S. tests.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., urging resumption of tests in the atmosphere, said this country must press "every possible effort to convert the neutron bomb from a theoretical concept to a practical reality."

Saying that work on the project had gone as far as it could go without testing when the moratorium on tests began in late 1958, Dodd said in a statement: "The neutron bomb would not only be a far more effective battlefield weapon than any now available to us, it would provide us with the most effective antimissile warhead nuclear technology is today capable of producing."

In a statement issued in Providence, R.I., Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., said the United States should explore development of the neutron bomb and an antimissile missile. He said both operations would require tests in the atmosphere.

Rusk Urges Japan Boost Aid To 'Have Not' Nations

HAKONE, Japan (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk opened the first conference of the U.S.-Japan Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs Thursday with a call for cooperation in aiding underdeveloped nations.

The committee was formed by President Kennedy and Premier Hayato Ikeda in Washington last June. To emphasize the importance he attaches to it, the American President sent five members of his official family—the largest number of Cabinet members ever to leave the country in a single group—to participate in its deliberations.

"As advanced industrial powers, our countries have mutual interests of a special kind—and mutual responsibilities," Rusk told the opening session.

"Not the least of our responsibilities is to assist the less-developed nations. President Kennedy has said, with great wisdom, that this decade of the 60s is the decade of development. There can be no decision more challenging or worthy than for the peoples of great powers, such as Japan and the United States, to devote a growing part of their resources to help the underdeveloped nations advance toward that level of economic competence where they can play useful and constructive roles in today's turbulent world."

Though Japan has bounced back from the destructive shocks of World War II and resumed its place as the leading industrial nation of Asia, Japanese aid to the "have not" nations of the area has been relatively skimpy.

Legislative Council Approves Equal Accommodations Bill

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Legislative Council approved by voice vote Wednesday a proposed bill which would require restaurants and hotels in the state to serve all races.

The action came after the 20-member council rejected, also by voice vote, a Judiciary Committee recommendation for an unfavorable report on the bill.

The council's action is not binding upon the General Assembly, but the bill now can be introduced with the interim body's recommendation.

The council is the between-sessions study arm of the assembly. Its duties include screening and recommending proposals for the consideration of the full legislature.

A special session of the legislature may be required to enact the proposed equal accommodations law if the next regular session in February does not adopt it.

The 1962 short session, which will be 30 days long, will be devoted exclusively to statewide matters. By virtue of this limitation, the bill could be killed if the assembly honors traditional local courtesy and approves an amendment seeking to exempt a political subdivision.

If this were done, the bill then would be, in effect, a local measure, which the assembly is prohibited from considering during a short session.

Legislators of five counties opposed the anti-discrimination bill when a vote was taken in the Judiciary Committee, and they might seek to exempt their counties when the legislation goes before the regular session.

The legislature, however, could override attempts to exercise local courtesy by rejecting amendments, in which case the law, if signed by the governor, would take in the whole state.

In a special session, local courtesy can be exercised without altering a bill's effect on other political subdivisions.

The bill approved by the council is the same one that failed on a voice vote in the closing hours of the 1961 General Assembly session.

It prohibits restaurant and hotel operators from turning away persons because of their "race, creed, color or national origin."

The proposed law provides a fine of $25 to $500 for conviction on a violation.

The White House, the State Department and several Maryland organizations have urged the adoption of an anti-discrimination law.

The interest of federal authorities stems from the refusal of some restaurants along the Maryland section of U. S. 40 to serve African diplomats traveling between New York and Washington.

The State Department claims such incidents, which have been frequent in recent months, are harmful to U. S. foreign relations.

The Maryland branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Restaurant Association of Maryland have urged Gov. Tawes to call a special session of the Legislature prior to the regular session to enact such a law.

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP also asked Tawes to halt discrimination in a telegram sent to the governor Tuesday from New York. The official also protested the arrests last week of five NAACP leaders near Baltimore.

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) also has said it will conduct a "massive freedom ride" along U. S. 40 on Nov.11 if Tawes does not call a special session before that date.

The council president, Sen. George W. Della, D-Balto 6th, and Dels. Richard T. Rombro, D-Balto 4th, Lester B. Reed, R-Allegany, and William Walsh, D-Allegany, voted for the bill when it came up in the Judiciary Committee.

Voting against it in committee were Sens. Harry R. Hughes, D-Caroline, Frederick C. Malkus, D-Dorchester, Mary L. Nock, D-Wicomico, and Frank E. Shipley, D-Howard, and Del. Ridgeley P. Melvin, D-Anne Arundel.

Negro Quizzed In Brutal Killing Of Farm Couple

LAUREL, Del. (AP) — Delaware State Police said Wednesday they were questioning a 25-year-old Negro in connection with the slayings of an elderly couple in their farm home.

Capt. John Herbert said the man in custody recently had been released from prison after serving two years of a four-year sentence for assaulting one of the murder victims in 1958.

The victims, 70-year-old Lorenzo B. Whaley and his 66-year-old wife, Mamie, were found shot and brutally beaten early Wednesday by one of their sons. Police said the woman had been slain in an upstairs bedroom of her home sometime Tuesday afternoon. Whaley was killed as he entered the house several hours later, police said. His body was badly mutilated.

A crowd gathered outside the Whaley home early Wednesday when it became known police were questioning someone regarding the killing. It dispersed, however, after Capt. Herbert revealed the man being questioned had been removed somewhere outside Sussex County, where the slayings occurred.

Capt. Herbert said the man in custody in connection with the case had been arrested early in the morning on a disorderly conduct charge. At the time of the arrest, Capt. Herbert said, police were unaware of the slayings.

Industrialist Asks Truce By Government, Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mark W. Cresap Jr., president of Westinghouse Electric Corp., says he is alarmed over a prevalence of reports of growing hostility between government and business.

This is no time for business to be "antigovernment" or government to be "antibusiness," Cresap said. He called for a re-examination of attitudes by both business and government.

In a speech prepared for a meeting Wednesday night of the Harvard Business School Club and George Washington University, the industrialist declaredj: "In today's period of peril and challenge, it would be imbecilic to engage in internecine warfare."

"Government is not the enemy of business; business is not the enemy of government," he said. "There is only one enemy, and we know who it is."

Cresap's firm was among the 29 electrical equipment-manufacturing companies convicted of price-fixing conspiracy in February. He said he believes the government was merely carrying out its responsibility under the law in prosecuting the antitrust case.

A great lesson has been learned and corrective measures have been instituted, he said.

Cresap said his appeal for understanding and cooperation between government and industry does not mean industry should be submissive any more than it means that government should keep its hands off the economic processes of the country.

Businessmen, rather than assuming "a posture of distant animosity" toward officials, should cooperate by presenting the business viewpoint while government policy is being formed, he said.

"For its part, government has an obligation, I believe, to expose itself to the business viewpoint—in fact, actively to seek it," he said.

Record Baltimore Budget Proposed

BALTIMORE (AP—A proposed budget of $303 million, the largest in Baltimore's history, was adopted Wednesday by the Board of Estimates.

The City Council probably will start public hearings on the budget next week. The council can only reduce, not increase, the size of the spending measure.

The proposed budget would require a property tax rate of $3.90 or $3.91 per $100 of assessed value, along with a new 3 per cent residential utilities tax.

If the council eliminates the utilities tax, and fails to find a substitute tax or reduce the budget by the amount of the tax yield, the property tax rate would rise to $3.98. The current rate is $3.60, the highest in the city's history.

Stalin's Body In New Grave

MOSCOW (AP)—Joseph Stalin, once the unchallenged leader of world communism, was relegated to the ranks Wednesday in a simple grave with the bare epitaph: J. V. Stalin, 1879-1953.

Only some marks on the floor of the huge tomb in Red Square testify that the old Bolshevik, now reviled as a murder of thousands, had shared the hallowed mausoleum with V. I. Lenin, founder of the modern Soviet state.

Soviet citizens by the thousands lined up in the rain to view Stalin's new grave, already covered with turf, behind the tomb in the shadow of the Kremlin's walls. Pravda had announced that the order banishing Stalin from the tomb had been carried out.

It was obviously a hasty job. The long black stone over the entry to the tomb had been covered with a kind of black tar or plastic.

News Commentary

By ROBERT J. SERLING
UPI Aviation Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb E. Halaby appears to have embarked on a new era of mutual cooperation and friendship with the Air Line Pilots Association (ALPA).

Halaby spoke at ALPA's annual safety forum in Chicago recently and obviously won a lot of respect with a friendly but frank appeal for the pilots to stop feuding with other segments of aviation.

"It is not enough for you to be a wage earner, nor a good company man, nor a good ALPA man nor even just a friend of the FAA," Halaby declared.

"I am asking you to turn your eyes from within, to stop looking at the rest of the aviation community as potential antagonists, to stop seeing yourselves as an impregnable division of aviation, to look up, to take to the sky with the same dedication as captains have gone down to the sea in ships."

Reporters who saw an advance copy of Halaby's speech expected the pilots, traditionally a hard-bitten band of rugged individualists, to regard it as a dish of pure corn. But they ate it up and asked for more.

"It's about time someone had the guts to tell us to stop acting like children — which we occasionally do," one captain commented.

Another said he didn't agree with everything Halaby said but added, "he's sincere and you got to respect him."

A third pilot said he didn't think much of Halaby until he heard him speak.

"He has brains and obvious integrity," this captain added. "I admire a guy who gets up and says what he thinks when he could have just mouthed a few compliments and platitudes."

This kind of reaction, general throughout the forum delegates, marked a 180-degree turn from pilot opinion of Halaby's predecessor, Gen. Elwood R. Quesada.

Halaby didn't hurt himself, of course, when in the course of the speech he made an indirect reference to the FAA under Quesada.

"Our job," he said, "is to help men fly, safely and profitably. And with some fun, if possible. We are dedicated to promoting the cause of aviation — not playing a game of cops and robbers around the airport."

That remark brought the loudest cheers and applause of the night. ALPA's feud with the hard-hitting Quesada was one of the bitterest ever to exist between a top government official and a private organization.

Most pilots feel that the FAA under Halaby isn't actually any less tough in rule enforcement than during Quesada's regime. But they think the attitude of the agency has changed.

"It's hard to pin down or put into words," one captain said. "It's more of a change in atmosphere than anything else. FAA inspectors are just as rough and rugged, but they also seem friendlier, easier to talk to, and things generally just aren't as tense in a cockpit when one gets aboard."

While the agency still cracks down on erring crews with the same impartial gusto it did when Quesada headed the agency, Halaby also has healed a lot of old wounds and hurt feelings by inviting pilot views on air safety matters and consulting them frequently.

The days when the FAA was Quesada-non-grata" with the pilots are over.

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (UPI) — The Greenbag Cement Co. is in the process of starting a big new cement - making operation about a mile from Greer, near Morgantown, a spokesman said Tuesday.

McGuffey Readers Victorious

TWIN LAKES, Wis. (UPI) — State schools superintendent Angus Rothwell gave his grudging approval Tuesday to use of the 1879 McGuffey readers in the Lakewood elementary school.

He called off a month-long feud with four members of the board and said he took the action in the best interests of the 225 pupils and the community.

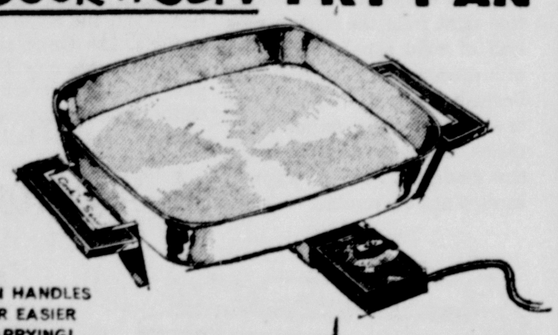

In a letter to board President Dennis Beula, Rothwell said he would permit use of the aged readers in the eighth-grade school because the board assured him the books won't be used to teach basic reading skills.

Rothwell said he had in turn told the board it could use the texts for "selected assignments of such materials as the work of well-accepted classic writers of early America."

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Imagine a two-year-old holding down a seat — with voting rights — in a family council.

That's the age at which the children of the Raplh Strahms, of Marion, Ind., start participating in the family pow-wows — held about three times weekly.

"The two-year-old gets some coaching on how to vote, but does not always need coaching on the discussion — especially if it relates to recreation," Strahms said in an interview.

The executive director of the Marion Boys' Club, in New York to attend a Boys' Clubs of America training conference, found the pow-wow system worked so well in the club that he put it to work in his home.

At the meetings in the club, youngsters who have broken a rule are "tried" by their peers and punishment is decided.

On the home front, the family pow-wow decides discipline to be taken when a member of the clan breaks a rule.

Discipline includes withdrawal of privileges usually. That is, curtailment of television time, visits to friends houses, desserts.

Strahm said at any family pow-wow, it's only natural that the father should preside, that the mother serve as recording secretary and that the children contribute to the discussion.

"A family council," he said, "should handle such matters as discipline for breaking policy, vacation plans, setting family behavior policy, various family purchases."

Strahm said the meetings help the children's self-expression their understanding of democracy, and contribute to a better concept of one another and the family as a group.

He said any parents thinking of launching a council plan within the family must first realize the rights of the child as an individual.

"I consider this the greatest hurdle," he said. "After crossing this barrier, the next step is to set up a formal organization. And once it starts, every member must feel the right to express his or her viewpoint without ridicule or punishment for said expression."

Historic Documents Dating From 88-135 A.D. Found In Holy Land

NEW YORK (UPI)—Discovery of the largest single collection of historic documents ever unearthed in the Holy Land—second in importance only to the Dead Sea scrolls—was announced on Tuesday by Dr. Yigael Yadin, professor of archeology at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Yadin told a news conference that 64 documents, including two Bible fragments found recently in a cliff-side cave near the Dead Sea in Israel, made no mention of Jesus or the early Christian church, although they dated from 88 to 135 A.D. He said he found the omission "strange."

The Dead Sea scrolls are 60 to 70 years older than the newly found documents and make no mention of Jesus either.

Yadin, former chief of staff of the Israeli defense forces and an authority on the Dead Sea scrolls, described the new find as a collection of legal documents relating to a group of refugee Judeans who had fled to the caves after Roman emperor Hadrian's forces crushed a 3½ year revolt led by Israeli Prince Bar Kochba in 136 A.D. He said they dealt with many of the personalities described in a cache of Bar Kochba letters found in the area last year.

"These documents actually establish the existence of Bar Kochba, a legendary figure in Jewish history whose existence has been questioned," Yadin said. "In a sense, they are more important than if we had found 15 original letters by Shakespeare. They establish that the Bar Kochba rebellion was not just political, it was also religious."

There were two fragments of Biblical scrolls, from the Book of Numbers and the Book of Psalms, which are among the earliest fragments of the traditional Jewish text of the Bible ever found.

NEW YORK (AP)—Prospects of the two big "R" groups on the stock market—railroads and retailing—look good to investment analysts.

Two brokerage firms whose research departments checked up on these industries find improvement already apparent in the fourth quarter and predict it will extend well into the next year.

Bache & Co., noting that railroads showed thier first year-to-year gain in October, said indications are that the industry is making a turnaround from recession slumps and that accelerated improvements are expected at least through the first half of 1962.

It says higher steel production, more shipments of automobiles, appliances and building materials and increased defense spending should result in increased traffic for railroads.

Other factors which augur well for improved earnings potential on a permanent basis, it feels, will be continued favorable legislative climate, recognition by the regulatory authorities of the importance of mergers, passenger subsidies and a more realistic rate structure.

"This would help to improve profit margins and stimulate investor interest," Bache says.

As for retailing—embracing department stores, mail order firms and discount houses—Goodbody & Co. believes the stage is set for a good fourth quarter and accelerating sales strength well into 1962.

It cites as factors pointing to increasing volume and profits the expanding population, increasing family formations and rising disposable income, combined with widespread acceptance of low-overhead discount and self-service policies on one hand and high-quality department store appeal on the other.

Tangier Island Welcomes New Resident Doctor

TANGIER ISLAND, Va. (AP)—This five-mile finger of land in Chesapeake Bay got a full-time, resident physician today.

Dr. John Edward Parks Jr. of Robbinsville, N.C., rode the daily mail boat to the island from the mainland at Crisfield, Md.

Many of the remote island's 1,000 residents, unable to wait on Dr. Parks' arrival, were waiting to greet him on the mainland before he departed. Various representatives of churches on the island were in the crowd but there were no speeches or other formalities.

Dr. Parks and his wife climbed aboard the mail boat "Dorolena II" at 12:30 p.m. for the 30-minute ride to their new home. The doctor has three children by a previous marriage who also have devoted their lives to medicine or social service.

His arrival climaxed a six-month search for a physician by the islanders who have been without full-time medical care from time to time over the years.

A physician on Virginia's Eastern Shore, Dr. Isaac S. White of Bloxom, had been making weekly visits to the island for the past two years but stopped recently because of his increased practice on the mainland.

Tangier Island lost its last doctor in 1959 when Dr. Mikio Kato of Kobe, Japan, married an island girl and left the communuty. Waiting for Dr. Parks was a $26,000 medical center opened in 1957 for Dr. Kato. Dr. Parks will receive a guaranteed income of $6,500 annually.

The island is about 15 miles southwest of Crisfield, Md., in Virginia waters of Chesapeake Bay. Residents trace their ancestry to Cornwall in England and speak a language often described as Chaucerian. Most of them make their living from the water.

Strike Idles 3,500 Armstrong Workers

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Some 3,500 workers were idled Wednesday at two plants of the Armstrong Cork Co. after a strike by a local union in a contract dispute involving seniority and union shop provisions.

The executive board of Local 285, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers Union, called the strike shortly after midnight after some of the 11 p.m. shifts had begun work. Pickets were posted at the two plants — the floor and closure plants.

The old contract expired at 11 p.m. but it was extended a couple hours pending last ditch efforts to agree on a new pact.

Wages are not a major issue.

Md. Employment Hits Record 1,082,800

BALTIMORE (AP)— Maryland had a record high 1,082,800 persons employed in September.

The unemployment figure of 54,800 for the month amounted to 4.8 per cent of the civilian labor force, the Department of Employment Security reported Wednesday.

"This is the lowest unemployment figure since the end of 1957 and resulted from both improved economic conditions and young people dropping out of the jobless ranks to return to school," the announcement said.

Prince Georges Cops To Use Police Dogs

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Prince Georges County police are now authorized to use police dogs.

The county commissioners Tuesday approved a request by county Police Chief George J. Panagoulis to begin with one dog and to add others later.

The chief said he hopes Washington police will do the training.

Maryland News In Brief

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Three University of Maryland alumni will be honored by the university's board of regents Nov. 3 a spokesman said Wednesday.

The board will present Regents' Distinguished Service Awards to Maj. Gen. Lindsay M. Silvester (USA ret.) of Washington, D.C.; Dr. E. Paul Knotts of Denton, Md.; and Dr. George H. Yeager of Baltimore. More than 475 university students also will receive certificates for their academic achievement at the special honors convocation.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The fallout count in Baltimore dropped by nearly half Wednesday, the State Health Department said.

A radiation count showed 8.19 micromicrocuries per cubic meter of air. The reading Tuesday was 16.05. Average daily fallout in Baltimore last month was 13.26, with Oct. 1 recording the highest radiation count of 28.19. Health officials consider a count of 100 to be dangerous.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A five-year-old Baltimore girl was fatally burned Tuesday night and her four-year-old brother remained in critical condition from burns he received when fire swept through their second-floor bedroom.

The girl, Michele Floyd, and her brother, Raphael, were in the bedroom when the fire broke out, police said. The children's mother, Mrs. Mary Floyd, said she was talking with a neighbor on the first floor when a friend ran over and told her the second floor of the hcuse was on fire. Efforts to climb the steps were futile, as flames beat back would-be rescuers. Raphael somehow managed to get down the steps. A Baltimore policeman, Louis Revwer, also was badly burned as he attempted to rescue the children.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — An honors dormitory for some of its top students has been established by the University of Maryland.

A university spokesman said the dorm, created from a portion of the new Cambridge Hall, was established primarily because of efforts by B. James Borreson, executive dean of student life. Borreson said the dorm was for those students interested in pursuing "the intellectual life". So far, 56 of the university's top students have been admitted to the section.

BALTIMORE (AP) — An 82-year-old Baltimore man was killed by a southbound Western Maryland Railway freight train Tuesday near a crossing in the South Baltimore suburbs.

Police said the victim, Paul Laubert, apparently stepped in front of the slow-moving freight train. He was pronounced dead at St. Agnes Hospital in Baltimore.

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Anne Arundel County commissioners approved a county budget of nearly $28 million, but refused to appropriate a salary for the county business manager.

The manager, J. J. Salovaara, declined to say whether he would attempt to have the commissioners who voted to delete his pay cited for contempt of court for violating an injunction against suspending or harassing the manager. Despite the fact the new budget is more than $4 million higher than last year's, taxes in seven districts were reduced. Annapolis property taxes, however, were hiked 14 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — Vernon Leon Baker, a member of the Carroll County grand jury which was meeting for the last time Wednesday, collapsed in the jury room and died of a heart attack.

The Sykesville man was pronounced dead on the scene by Dr. James G. Marsh, Carroll County medical examiner.

Sells Dish Plant

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. announced Wednesday it has sold its melamine dinnerware division, Bryant Electric Co., to Boonton Molding Co. of Boonton, N.J., for an undisclosed price.

W. Va. Guard At Ft. Meade

FT MEADE, Md. (AP) — National Guard troops from West Virginia called to active duty rolled into Ft. Meade by truck convoy Wednesday to replace a regiment of regulars sent overseas.

Units of the 150th Armored Cavalry Regiment of St. Albans, W.Va., commanded by Col. Daniel D. Holliday, were welcomed by Army brass and music from the 2nd Army Band as they arrived at this post midway between Baltimore and Washington.

The men replace the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment which sailed for Europe from Baltimore Tuesday as part of the current U.S. Army buildup overseas. Each regiment has approximately 2,500 men.

Lt. Gen. Ridgely Gaither, 2nd Army commander, and Col. Philip H. Pope, post commander, were on hand to greet the first contingent to arrive — the 2nd Reconnaissance Squadron of Moundsville, W.Va. Headquarters troop of the squadron, commanded by Capt. Thomas A. Ferris of Moundsville, was the first to set foot on their new home.

Savings And Loan Firm Plans To Transfer Deposits

BALTIMORE (AP) — The attorney for a Maryland savings and loan firm that failed to qualify as a bona fide savings and loan association and was ordered by a federal court to register before selling its stock, said Wednesday the firm has tentative plans to transfer its deposits.

Leon H. A. Pierson, attorney for American International Savings and Loan Association, said deposits totaling more than $200,000 and assets to cover them would be turned over to another firm if negotiations succeed and if the plan wins the approval of state authorities.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge Roszel C. Thomsen issued a decree Tuesday upholding a stand taken earlier by the Securities and Exchange Commission which prevented the firm from selling stock until requirements of the Sec have been met.

Judge Thomsen, in a 15-page opinion, contended the firm and its 14 affiliated organizations was engaged primarily in the exchange of capital stock for mortgages involving interests in Florida, Maine and New York.

Pierson said the planned transfer of American International's deposits was to give depositors "preferential treatment" and to protect the investments of stockholders.

Algerian War In Eighth Year Of Bloodshed

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

PARIS (UPI)—Seven years of agony in Algeria circle Wednesday's date in blood on every Frenchman's calendar.

Wednesday the Algerian war enters its eighth year of bloodshed with France's hopes focused on one goal—that somehow or other President Charles de Gaulle can come through with his pledge to end the colonial conflict.

It is a war that has cost more than 200,000 French and Moslem dead, uprooted millions from their homes and still is bleeding France's economy at the rate of an estimated two billion dollars annually.

In Algeria Europeans and Moslems are almost daily at each other's throats in a vicious, seemingly endless orgy of racial violence, stabbing, shooting and lynching.

In the heart of Paris only two weeks ago 40,000 Algerian Moslems yelled and rioted and at least three were killed by French police bullets.

The nightly crash of plastic bombs in Paris streets, the speeding police trucks and the whitewashed slogans "peace in Algeria" scrawled on factory walls are part of the small change of life in a France in 1961 where the Algerian war is never far distant.

In May, 1958, De Gaulle was swept back to power largely on his promise to end the Algerian fighting. On Jan. 8 this year France's voters handed him a crushing victory in a nationwide referendum vote which approved his policy of giving Algeria the right of self-determination and probable independence as a sovereign republic.

Negotiations Attempted Twice

Twice this year French and Moslem rebel delegates have sat down to peace talks — first at Evian and then Lugrin, early this summer.

Both conferences broke down in deadlock. But few Frenchmen doubt now that the talks will resume soon and that the ultimate results will be independence for Algeria, which France has ruled for 131 years, first as a colony and then as an integral part of herself.

The present bloodshed erupted on All Saints Day, Nov. 1, 1954, less than five months after liquidation of another bloody colonial war in Indo-China.

Thirty bands of armed rebels struck simultaneously in different parts of Algeria attacking isolated military and police posts, exploding bombs in the big cities and slitting the throats of Europeans and pro-French Moslems on lonely farms. Hundreds were killed in the initial orgy of violence.

The All Saints Day massacre was the signal for the long drawn out bloodbath that still has not ended.

France hurriedly beefed up her armed strength in Algeria, transfering several of her North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO divisions from Germany and the bulk of her famed Foreign Legion.

Under the impact of the Berlin crisis she recently repatriated two of those divisions to France. But for six years she maintained a huge army of 500,000 in Algeria including some 300,000 French troops, 90,000 Foreign Legionnaries and about 100,000 Moslem auxiliaries.

14,000 Troops Died

In the past seven years an estimated 14,000 French troops and more than 100,000 Moslem guerrillas have died in the fighting. In Algeria more than 15,000 civilians have been killed in terrorist attacks. Hundreds more have died in vicious rioting and thousands more in the camps.

In France itself, where an estimated 360,000 Algerian Moslems live today, 51 police have been killed and 270 wounded by Algerian gunmen. In the same hole-in-the-corner "warfare," 135 French civilians and 3,837 Moslems have been killed and 630 Frenchmen and 7,437 Moslems wounded.

All these casualties are since Jan. 1, 1956.

Only extremists among the 1,100,000 Europeans out of a total population of 10,000,000 in Algeria still dream of a settlement by force of arms that would make the country a "French Algeria" again. Yet, twice in the past two years — in January, 1960, and again in April this year — diehard Europeans with support of some sections of the French army have taken to the barricades in abortive revolts against De Gaulle plans to give Algeria its independence.

Rumblings of a third such desperate revolt in the making still are to be heard.

But De Gaulle has left no douut in the minds of Frenchmen that he himself is convinced that independence for Algeria is the only solution.

Conductor Fined

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—New York Central train conductor James R. Morris, Charleston, has been fined $37 for blocking a downtown crossing for about 30 minutes during a morning traffic rush-hour last week. Morris' switching freight backed up traffic on a main east-bound artery for about a mile while police were trying to keep cars moving during the local bus strike.

Colleagues Consider Late Learned Hand Model Federal Judge

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If newly appointed federal judges donning their robes this fall choose the late Judge Learned Hand as an inspiration for service to the Constitution and the law, they are making a wise choice.

That's the word from such eminent American jurists as U.S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter and others.

Hand died in New York last summer at 89 after almost a lifetime on the federal bench. He was long regarded by some of the nation's legal giants as the greatest living American jurist and often as the "10th member" of the Supreme Court.

During his rich experience in New York District Court and on the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, he did some thinking about what makes a good judge.

For Hand, the key was not so much training in the law as it was a man's spirit and background of learning, plus detachment and imagination. He urged imagination because, he said, a judge's work is an art, like a poet's or a sculptor's.

As for detachment, he was unmoved by those who claimed "only the unsophisticated and naive will believe in the reality of detachment and aloofness in judges or in anyone else." He said without these qualities "I am persuaded courts and judges will fail."

A judge should condition his mind by dipping into the accumulated wisdom of mankind, Hand said.

Hand went on to explain the judge's role in a way which demonstrates his own superb mastery of the art of writing:

"The words he must construe are empty vessels into which he can pour nearly anything he will. Men do not gather figs of thistles, nor supply institutions from judges whose outlook is limited by parish or class. They must be aware that there are before them more than verbal problems; more than final solutions cast in generalizations of universal applicability. They must be aware of the changing social tensions in every society which make it an organism; which demand new schemata of adaptation; which will disrupt it, if rigidly confined."

To lawyers and fellow jurists, Hand stood for an everlasting, uncompromising search for truth.

He liked the Shakespearean sonnet addressed to Time, which ends:

"This I do vow, and this shall ever be,
I will be true, despite thy scythe and thee."

He suggested that qualities which "clear the path to truth" are "skepticism, tolerance, discrimination, urbanity, some—but not too much—reserve towards change, insistence upon proportion and, above all, humility before the vast unknown."

Hand's quest for truth continued not only in disregard of legal precedent, but with a wary eye on what he himself had said and written. He clung to skepticism, an unsteady guide, but one that he could never relinquish.

"Long ago," a lawyer friend said of him, "he cast off his moorings and put out on a sea of doubts."

"Of those qualities on which civilization depends," Hand once said, "next after courage, it seems to me, comes an open mind, and, indeed, the highest courage is as (Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell) Holmes used to say, to stake your all upon a conclusion which you are aware tomorrow may prove false."

On another occasion he said: "It seems to me that if we are to be saved, it must be through skepticism."

In physical appearance Hand conformed with the popular image of a dignified jurist. He was stocky of frame, with a deceptively stern countenance and bushy eyebrows.

His close friends say Hand would have been horrified by the saintly air in which some of his admirers cloaked him. Indeed it was hinted pointedly in some testimonials that he was no slouch in the use of profanity. A dash of irreverence was part of his makeup.

The famous jurist was a singer and mimic much in demand at parties and an enthusiastic devotee of Gilbert and Sullivan. He liked to render sea ditties and even made a recording.

The open question in and out of government during Hand's lifetime was why he was never appointed to the U.S. Supreme Court, although he often was affectionately referred to as "the 10th Supreme Court justice."

Justice Felix Frankfurter, who looks back on "a precious friendship of 50 years," with Hand, calls this omission "one of the caprices of fortune."

"But," continued Frankfurter, "he was lucky in not having drawn a successful ticket in that odd lottery by which men are picked for the Supreme Court of the United States."

"He would have found himself more contained within the curtilage of the court and, thus, we would have been denied the moral leadership, the great influence of his courageous and eloquent free spirit all these years," Frankfurter said in 1959 at a 50th anniversary celebration for Hand as a federal judge.

His most quoted utterance on liberty was made, not in court, but to thousands of persons gathered for the 1944 "I Am An American Day" ceremony in Central Park, New York:

"What do we mean when we say that first of all we seek liberty? I often wonder whether we do not rest our hopes too much upon constitutions, upon laws and upon courts. These are false hopes; believe me, these are false hopes.

"Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women: when it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it; no constitution, no law, no court can even do much to help it. While it lies there it needs no constitution, no law, no courts to save it."

Flu Down In W.Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The number of influenza - like diseases this year continues to run behind last year's figures the State Health Department said. The department said 834 new cases were reported last week, 133 from Wyoming County. So far this year, 15,389 cases have been recorded, compared to 78,422 at the same period last year. One new polio case, from Fayette County, was reported last week, upping West Virginia's 1961 total to 30.

The CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 68 In 1861, when expenditures of the federal government rose by leaps and bounds in the all-out measures against the Secessionists, 64.3 per cent of its total revenues came from taxes and only 35.5 per cent from loans. As indicated in a previous column here, popular sale of small denomination bonds, and income taxes were not adopted until later in the war. One of the heaviest of the excise taxes Secretary of the Treasury Salmon P. Chase got Congress to adopt was upon whisky, brandy, rum, gin and other alcoholic potables.

This proved a great boon to the patent medicine industry. As Gerald Carson explains in his newly published pictorial history of miracle-remedy commerce, "One for a Man, Two for a Horse" (pub. by Doubleday), the war emergency tax law left patent medicines tax exempt. Thus hundreds of different concoctions of rum, whisky or plain alcohol with bitters or other flavorings sprang up.

Bigger fortunes were made out of these, another historian suggests, than from munitions. One bottler of an all-around palliative for any condition in the human or animal body "made $18,000,000 out of his celebrated comforter," Carson states.

Having grown rich out of concoctions of proven, wide public appeal, the manufacturers did not let their businesses run down after the repeal of war emergency taxes brought back cheap jugs of corn or rye. They redoubled their printed ballyhoos and cast appeals to those who couldn't read through oral persuasion with free shows.

Do Street Repairs Make You Hungry?

By CLAIRE COX

NEW YORK (UPI)—The ice cream vendor and popcorn machine stir cravings for treats among today's youngsters.

But their parents often hanker for their favorite childhood snack when they come upon a street repair crew at work.

All over the country, from Fresno to Maryland and Buffalo to Blytheville, Ark. yesterday's children enjoyed the chewy, aromatic, absolutely non-digestible substance that was used to mend cracks and plug potholes in traffic arteries.

Tar.

That's right. Not bubble gum at a penny a chew, but tar—as free as the air breathed by the resourceful youngsters of yesteryear.

There cannot be many who either have not tried the delicacy or been tempted to. The tar chewers were members of an elite society that also knew the joys of sucking on splinters of ice generously chopped off a huge cake in the rear of the ice truck that called daily before the era of the electric refrigerator and the deep freeze.

An entire neighborhood of children could detect the arrival of the tar pot almost as soon as it was fired up. Youngsters would stand hungrily by watching the men mend cracks and wondering if they would ever leave. Then the moment the road gang moved on, the greedy hands went to work, snatching gobs of tar in a frantic race for a good chew before the patch was flattened and dirtied by an oncoming car.

Some younsters were too fastidious even to shew black stuff removed from the pavement so soon after pouring that it still was warm and only a little bit dusty. These finicky ones usually chopped bite-size chunks off cakes of tar before the repairmen had a chance to dump them in the melting pot.

Of course, there were those who simply did not like the taste of tar. They had other goodies to nibble on, such as aromatic weeds they called Lady's Chewing tobacco, or libations concocted with varying quantities of water and dirt—in other words—mud.

A suburban New York wife and mother who otherwise has managed to exist on a reasonably normal, nutritious, vitamin-packed diet admits that in the days when her husband was chomping on tar in Maryland she was enjoying her own favorite between meals fare.

She nibbled on paper bags.

But not just any paper bags. She only liked brown paper.

Raincoats Give Protection Against Nuclear Fallout

W. Va. Health Director Urges Parents To Instruct Children

By CARTER B. MC DAVID
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—State Health Director N. H. Dyer has recommended that parents have their children wear raincoats to offset the danger of radioactive debris in rain.

Dyer emphasized that there presently are no indictions such fallout had reached the dangerous stage as result of Russia's heavy nuclear testing.

"However, more use of raincoats and head covering isn't going to hurt us—so why not try and take every means possible to prevent possible contamination," he said.

Dyer noted that school children in Japan are presently being instructed to always wear raincoats or some type of plastic covering when going out in the rain or snow. "It would do well for us to follow this," he said.

Causes Concern

"The problem of radioactive fallout and increased exposure of our population" is a matter of considerable concern to his department, Dyer noted.

"There is little doubt that the extra radiation caused by the Soviet tests will add to the risk of genetic effect in succeeding generations and possibly to the risk of health damage to some people in the United States," he said.

He agreed that authorities differ on just what amount of fallout proves injurious to the body. "Even though the danger does not appear to be great at this time, we might as well get used to wearing protective clothing whenever possible," he said.

He said inexpensive plastic raincoats and hats would fit the needs, particularly for smaller children. The raincoats should be put in a shower and washed off immediately after a child comes indoors.

Smooth Clothing Needed

For protection in the winter, he suggested that outer clothing be used that would allow the snow to melt and drip off quickly.

"I don't want to alarm the people, but I feel we should get concerned with this situation," Dyer said. "We can't go around hiding under cover, so we had better get used to using every means to protect ourselves."

He pointed out that just last September 19 fallout reached a relatively high level in sections of West Virginia. "Fortunately, however, subsequent readings showed a rapid decline."

"We can't cover this state or county with a huge umbrella and it's going to be up to the individual to protect himself from any form of fallout," Dyer said.

"My department is charged with keeping the people informed of the situation and we are going to do this as best we can."

'Uranium King' Wishes Everybody Would Forget Him

By PETER J. HAYES

SARATOGA, Calif. (UPI)—High on a fir and redwood covered mountain overlooking San Francisco Bay, uranium king Vernon Pick wishes people would forget him.

The onetime Minnesota farm boy headed for the Santa Cruz mountains with his wife, Ruth, a few years ago after finding his fabulous Delta mine in south central Utah. He sold it to financier Floyd Odlum and netted $6 million after taxes.

The resulting publicity brought up to 10,000 letters a day to Pick. They're still coming. Most start out, "I don't want your money, just a loan."

The tall, lean-faced millionaire emphasized that he needs no advice on how to spend his money; he's got first rate professional help in San Francisco and he has long since picked out his favorite charities.

What kind of people write and ask for money?

"Typical is a young married couple," said Pick. "They have a child but they don't want to lower their standard of living. Then they have another child and they get deeper in debt.

"They want somebody to bail them out. Most figure about $2,000 will do it."

A retired railroad telegrapher asked Pick to give him a special uranium-powered telegraph key. After he was dead, it would be attached to his gravestone and tap out his name in Morse code into eternity.

Many people make their fruitless appeals in person. They come by bus into Saratoga, then trudge two miles up a winding mountain road to Pick's unpretentious lodge. One man from Seattle appeared at the door and announced, "God sent me."

"Actually," said the soft-spoken 58-year-old Pick, "I don't think most people really would want to be millionaires. You get some of the big things you've always wanted. I have a Jaguar automobile and a Bonanza plane. But after a while the stuff gets in the way.

"I know I don't fit into people's idea of a rich man. We have no household help. If I want to wash my car, I wash my car. I know a lot of people who like to lie around a pool at Palm Springs but they're not interesting to me. I like people who do things."

Pick keeps busy on his 850-acre property, which he calls Walden West in honor of one of his favorite authors, Henry Thoreau. He built an electronics laboratory in which he and technicians developed a device to measure radiation given to cancer patients and an airborne mineral detector.

In his shops he hopes to "develop worthwhile things to make life better for people and improve the dignity of man."

All in all, said Pick, he's not much changed from when he ran an electrical repair shop at Two Rivers, Minn., in the 1940s. He and his wife grew their own food and in their best year he made about $10,000.

Then one night in May, 1951, his $50,000 plant burned down. It was insured for about a quarter of its worth. With some of the insurance money, Pick and his wife bought a panel truck and house trailer and headed for California. "I wasn't aiming at becoming a millionaire," he said. "I just wanted to get back what I lost in the fire."

The Picks decided to stop off and join ghe uranium rush then under way in Colorado and Utah. With a geology book in one hand and a Geiger counter in the other, the amateur prospector crisscrossed the desolate terrain of the Colorado Plateau from four to six weeks at a time for nearly a year without success.

Red Chinese Leaders' Wives Appear In Public

By TED SHIMIZU

TOKYO (UPI)—The wives of Red Chinese leaders are beginning to get an "equal" treatment from their husbands.

Reports filtering through the bamboo curtain indicate the Red chieftains are now inclined to use to their good advantage one aspect of Western "culture"—allowing their wives to appear before the public.

Red China's Chairman (president) Liu Shao-chi surprised many people last month by bringing his wife to the Peiping airport to welcome the king and Queen of Nepal.

Heretofore, Mrs. Liu had never appeared before a big public gathering.

The majority of Red China's 650 million people have not been aware of activities of the wives of their leaders. The wives have been wrapped in a shroud of mystery.

The Communist press has hardly reported their activities and hardly any pictures of them have been printed in Communist newspapers.

But Red authorities allowed to slip out of the bamboo curtain a picture of Liu and his wife greeting the Nepalese royal couple. Observers here said it was a rare picture because Liu had taken his wife to the airport.

To Build Reactor

ACCRA (UPI) — President Kwame Krumah announced Monday night that Ghana's first research reactor and radio-chemical laboratory producing isotopes will be built with Soviet aid. No date was announced for the project.

Visas Denied

BONN (UPI)—The Foreign Ministry announced Tuesday it has refused permission for Moscow's Spartak football team to play in West Germany. A spokesman said visas were denied to members of the team because of the Berlin crisis and the Soviet nuclear tests.

Breakfast foods were introduced to the United States in 1697 by Charles W. Post.

Army Camp's Identical Twins Produce Confusion

FT. DIX, N. J. (UPI) — The army, which likes its ranks uniform, got more than it bargained for in John and Joseph Marcheseault. They're identical twins.

The 23-year-old brothers, exact duplicates to most people other than their family, became even harder to tell apart once they donned the same uniform.

They completed their basic training here recently and were assigned to the post's Classification and Assignment section as personnel specialists.

The double-takes came frequently as persons passed from one office to another only to find the same faces working at different desks.

The brothers are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Marcheseault of Moosup, Conn. They have four brothers and one sister.

Before entering the Army, Joseph was assistant manager for an ice cream corporation in Bedham, Mass., and John had a similar job in West Boyleston, Mass., some 90 miles away.

Salesmen were stunned when, after leaving one store and traveling to the next, they were met by the "same" man.

Sublime enjoyment is ahead when the perfect hostess greets the perfect guest! Can you play both roles?

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Hostess Or Guest — How Do You Rate?

Which is it easier to be, a popular hostess or a popular guest? It's a question that has been pondered by many after a less-than-smooth week end. But if you were disappointed in either role recently, cast an eye over the following quiz and perhaps you'll have a clearer conception as to just who was at fault, and how.

If you are hostess, ask yourself:

1. Do I always tell my guests the exact time I wish them to arrive? It saves much stress in your household and much embarrassment for your guests. "Friday in time for dinner," is not enough. "Friday for dinner at seven," is fair to everybody.

2. When I invite guests, do I always tell them what is planned in the way of entertainment? Unless you do, don't expect a guest to arrive prepared either in mood or with equipment for anything from a picnic to a ball!

3. Do I plan and schedule every moment of my guests' leisure time? No one enjoys a marathon; everyone needs some leisure to follow his own whims — particularly week end guests who are part of the working population.

4. Do I try to gather congenial people together? It's the big secret of being a successful hostess!

If you're a guest, ask yourself:

1. Am I punctual about every one of the hostess' plans? If not, you are guilty of the most unwelcome kind of thoughtlessness.

2. Do I enter into the spirit of all the entertainment offered? If you hate boats, for instance, and knew a sailing party was to be included in the week end, you should have declined.

3. Do I hang around forlornly when things are quiet or do I try to liven up the scene? Either shows you are devoid of private interests, and worse still, either puts a strain on the others who may desire a few minutes of solitude.

4. Must I take or send an elaborate present? A good guest is the best gift a hostess can have. Anything else except a thank-you note is up to you.

Now, how do you rate? If you can see both sides of the question, you must be a popular guest and a top-flight hostess!

W.Va. Branch Colleges To Be Discussed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— A dinner meeting which may have a direct bearing on the future of branch colleges in West Virginia will be held here the night of Dec. 6.

Meeting to discuss the matter will be Council of State College and University presidents and the State Board of Education.

A council delegation appeared before the board last week and there were indications some of the presidents have doubts about the value of branch institutions in West Virginia.

The dinner meeting, requested by the council, will be held the night of the opening day of the two-day meeting.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a fellow 22 who is engaged to marry a girl 24. She admitted to one serious love affair before me, but refuses to say who the fellow is. She has gone with several attractive guys but only one was a real sweetheart.

If we are going to have a good life together I think I should know all about her past. And I mean ALL. It's torture when we meet some of her old crowd and I find myself wondering "Is HE the guy?"

I've told her all about my past affairs and I've held nothing back —including names and places. Isn't she being unfair? — FRANK

DEAR BIG MOUTH: Just because you came up with the names and numbers of all of the players doesn't mean that your fiancee should do the same.

She has confessed that there was someone before you — now forget it and quit nagging her for details.

If the fact that you aren't getting a white-flower girl is too much to bear then tell her goodbye. I suspect you are too young for her in more ways than one. Find yourself a gal about 18 and maybe you'll be less tortured.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My aunt and uncle moved to this city three months ago. They are decent people but putting it bluntly, they are ignorant and boring. I can tolerate them alone but I hate to inflict them on our friends.

Last night this aunt and uncle dropped in — uninvited. I was just about to prepare snacks for a small group of invited friends. I sat on needles and pins for a solid hour and then I decided to be frank. I explained that our guests were expected soon and I had to excuse myself to prepare for them. They left with a hurt look.

My husband says I should have asked them to stay. My aunt and uncle spoiled two other evenings for us by dropping in unexpectedly when guests were already present. I decided not to let it happen again.

My husband is annoyed with me. Who is Right? — C.X.

DEAR C.X.: Your husband will probably be annoyed with me, too, because I have no sympathy for people who drop in uninvited.

I think you were right in refusing to be trapped in your own home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We were having a discussion in our office recently and no one was able to come up with a satisfactory definition. We decided to turn it over to you.

What is the difference between light conversation and gossip? — THE GROUP

DEAR GROUP: Light conversation is an informal exchange of ideas. Gossip is an oral review of the affairs of others — generally of an intimate nature.

So-o-o were you gossiping or talking?

CONFIDENTIAL TO BETSY: Tell Fat Stuff to buy a bag of popcorn and stay at home and burn out his own TV tubes. He doesn't sound like much of a date to me, Kiddo.

Are you parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teen-agers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

$2.49 Million Spent On W.Va. Projects

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The State Welfare Department reports that $2.49 million had been spent since the start of the cooperative federal-state public works program for West Virginia jobless.

The department said 8,418 families benefited and the number has been increasing steadily each month. August payments totaled $623,881, September $858,248 and October $1.01 million.

Logan County received the largest allocation for the three-month period, $217,921 for 696 recipients. McDowell with $178,813 and 529 persons was second, while the lowest payment was $3,350 to 10 people in Jefferson County.

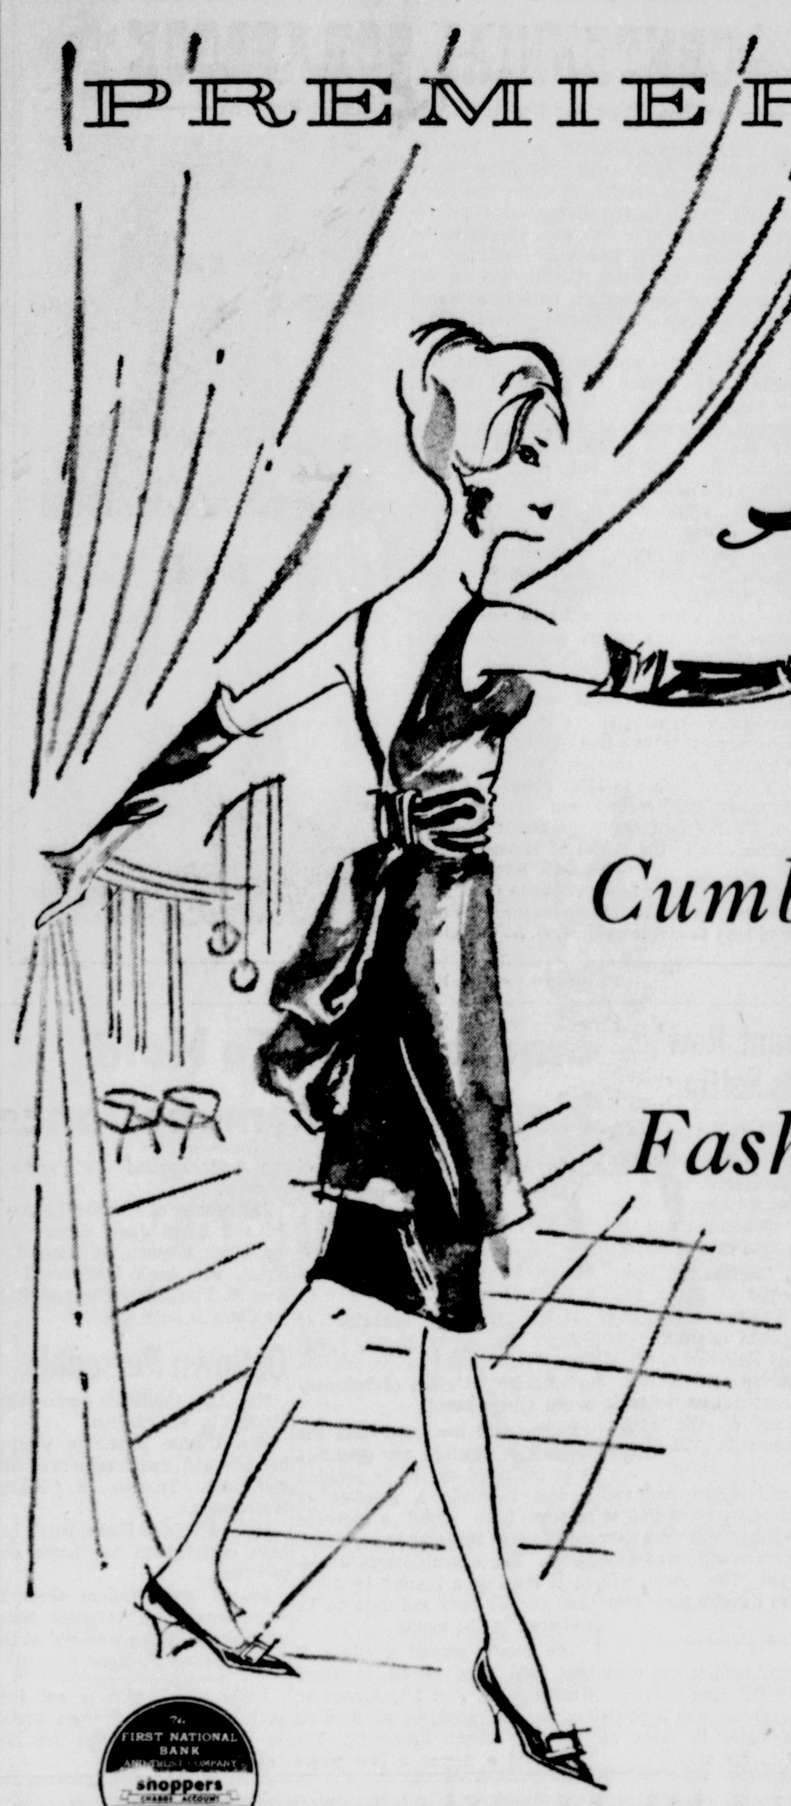

The department said in only eight counties has the amount spent been less than $10,000. Besides Jefferson, they are Gilmer, Hampshire, Hancock, Hardy, Morgan, Tyler and Wirt.

Aerospace Center

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)— A new $5 million aerospace center opened Tuesday to speed work on guidance equipment for missiles, space equipment and spacecraft of the future.

The center, built by Minneapolis Honeywell's aeronautical division will produce a miniature electrically suspended gyroscope which it said promises greatly improved accuracy in space vehicle guidance. It also plans a new autopilot that "thinks for itself" to steer a human pilot safely through dangerous regions at the fringe of space.

Law Asked Governing Fund Drives

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Judiciary Committee of the Legislative Council asked the state attorney general's office Tuesday to prepare a law which would require registration of fund-raising organizations operating in Maryland.

A hearing on the question had been requested by Deputy Atty. Gen. Joseph Kaufman, who cited instances in which fund-raising privileges had been abused.

In other action, the Judiciary Committee delayed until Wednesday consideration of a proposed public accommodations bill and held a hearing on ground rents.

The Budget and Finance Committee of the council, between sessions study arm of the General Assembly, gave a favorable report on a proposal increasing pensions of Circuit Court and Court of Appeals judges.

The report will be presented to the full council when it meets Wednesday.

The committee asked Kaufman to draft a law which would be considered during the council's meeting in December.

The deputy attorney general said a law passed recently by the Minnesota Legislature might serve as a guide for a Maryland law controlling fund-raising.

Among other things, the Minnesota statute requires organizations conducting professionally-run fund campaigns to register with State authorities.

Groups soliciting funds for religious purposes, universities under the supervision of the State Board of Education and certain fraternal organizations are among those exempt under the provisions of the Minnesota law.

Kaufman said the proposed Maryland law should require the filing of a statement attesting to the good standing of fund-raising organizations.

It would not be designed to restrict the activities of the groups, but would serve to bring "unscrupulous" operators into the open, he said.

Enactment of such a law also was urged by Daniel H. Burkhardt, adjutant of the Maryland Department of the American Legion.

The committee has been scheduled to consider legislation outlawing racial discrimination policies of Maryland businesses during the session Tuesday night.

But action was delayed at the request of Sen. Frederick C. Malkus Jr., D-Dorchester, the chairman, who was unable to attend.

The United Organizations of Hamilton, Inc. asked the Judiciary Committee to consider changing Maryland's ground rents law to give home buyers more power in negotiating for property.

Spokesmen for the organization claimed the choice as to whether the buyer will purchase a lot outright or pay rent on it now rests in the hands of the builder.

The spokesmen said the law should authorize the redemption of property at any time. Under existing regulations, the builder can require ground rent payments for five years, after which the buyer can exercise an option to buy.

The judicial pensions proposal which would cost an estimated $85,000 a year, would establish a retirement pay maximum of $12,000 a year for Circuit judges with 16 years service, and $13,600 for Court of Appeals judges.

Included are graduated steps for judges who have served less than 16 years. The maximum pension for circuit judges now is $7,200, and for Court of Appeals judges, $8,800.

The finance committee also rejected a proposed $5,000 salary increase for circuit judges, but went on record as favoring a $5,000 increase in the salaries of Court of Appeals judges.

Loans Drop

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Business loans by leading banks in the 5th Federal Reserve District declined $6.07 million last week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond said. This reduced outstanding loans to $973,148,000. Most of West Virginia is included in the district.

The CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 69 Jeff Davis a UNION man? Yes, the Union Army had Jefferson Davis serving it as a general—Jefferson Columbus Davis of Indiana. He got into the Army as a private when 16 (the Mexican War was on), stayed in the Regulars, and was a first lieutenant, artillery, at Fort Sumter when the South Carolinians set off the war in 1861. An able soldier, he was advanced rapidly in rank and was a brigadier general within a year.

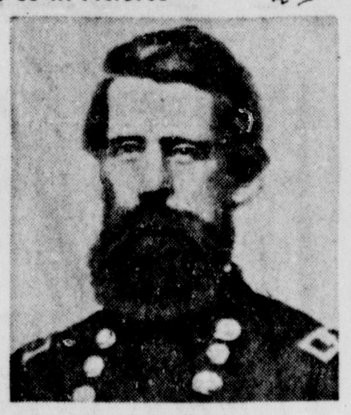

William Nelson, an erstwhile naval cadet who was a brother of a friend of President Lincoln, became the Union Jeff Davis' superior in the Army of Kentucky in September 1862. The professional soldier and the political soldier clashed verbally, and Brig. Gen. Davis killed Maj. Gen. Nelson in the lobby of a Louisville hotel.

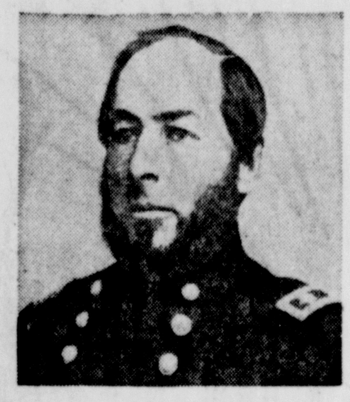

Davis was not arrested or tried for the murder, and continued in the service, but was punished in another way: he was denied promotion to major general during the war, despite recommendations of Generals Rosecrans and Grant.

After the war, when most officers who stayed in the service went back to pre-war grades, Davis remained in the Regulars and did duty in Alaska and in the Modoc War. When retired, he was rewarded at last, through brevet, with the second star of a major general.

There was more than one Gen. Grant, too. Lewis Addison Grant, a school teacher and lawyer who joined the Vermont forces in 1861, rose to be major general in 1864. He earned one decoration for which Gen. U. S. Grant never qualified: the highest decoration of all—the Medal of Honor.

—CLARK KINNAIRD

[→] The OTHER Grant: Lewis Addison Grant, who entered the Union Army in 1861 as major and earned promotion in 1864 to major general, U. S. Volunteers.

'Restaurant Row' TV Series Setting

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hollywood's famous "restaurant row," La Cienega Boulevard, is the setting for a planned new TV series in which newspapermen will take over from private eyes as heroes.

The series, "Restaurant Row," is the brainchild of Peter Fairchild, a well-known artist here who has a special interest in the show—he owns Fairchild's, one of the top restaurants on the row.

The restaurant will be the main interior setting of the series, much as Dino's in "77 Sunset Strip."

The show will feature real and fictional columnists, according to Fairchild, and they will drop into the eatery to exchange yarns with other newsmen. The show will then take form through their reminiscences.

Liquor Board To Hold Hearing On Remonstrance

The Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverage License Commissioners yesterday scheduled a hearing on a remonstrance against issuance of a transfer of a Class D beer permit.

Delcie Basilio, operator of Patsy's Place, 19 North Front Street, has applied for permission to transfer his place of business to 201 Glenn Street.

Basilio told the board that the building in which he now operates is to be razed and he is seeking a new location. A number of persons have signed a petition objecting to the location on Glenn Street. The commissioners decided to hold up a hearing to allow time for all facts and data to be gathered in the matter.

The board granted a Class D beer and wine permit to Cecil Randolph Jr. Post 271, American Legion, for premises at 9 West Mechanic Street, Frostburg. The post held a permit a few years ago and applied for another recently.

The license of Charles Reynard Jr. and Ellen Jane Kenney for the Dutch Kitchen, 20 South Lee Street, has been transferred to Rose E. Faulkner. The permit is for Class D beer sales.

Plans Made For Tour Of Water Plant

Area residents attending the Water Department open house at the Lake Gordon filtration plant Sunday from 1 to 5 p. m., will be presented with a pamphlet explaining the operation of the city's water system.

G. Ray Light, water commissioner, said guides will be on hand to explain the workings of the water plant operation.

Cumberland impoundments, Lake Gordon, 1,330,000,000 gallon capacity, and Lake Koon 2,300,000,000 capacity, are located in Cumberland Valley Township, Bedford County, Pa., and contain enough water to supply the city at its present use for over 240 days if no rain fell in that time. This is based on approximately 15,000,000 gallons daily use. Water is supplied by Evitts Creek, a pure mountain stream, and normal capacity for the watershed of this creek is 22,000,000 gallons a day.

The filtration plant removes impurities from the water, chlorine is added in a measured amount, thoroughly sterilizing the supply. Water is tested daily for chlorine content, hardness, alkalinity, color, turbidity and coli.

Various points in the city (such as a fountain at a service station) are checked daily to maintain safe drinking water and locate any source of contamination should it occur.

Water flows the nine miles to Cumberland through two reinforced concrete pipes, three feet in diameter. Cumberland was one of the first cities to use this type pipe as it was in using anthracite coal as a filter medium. Water goes to Fort Hill reservoir, through pipes all over the city and to Ridgedale Reservoir. From Ridgedale, a 20-inch pipe runs to the Celanese plant. An 18-inch line runs from Fort Hill to the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company.

There are 96 miles of water main inside the city and 21 miles outside the city.

The system, in addition to users inside the city, also supplies Ridgeley, Wiley Ford, Cresaptown, LaVale; the area between Celanese and Cumberland; the area between PPG and the city; residents along Bedford Road, Nave's Crossroads, and certain consumers adjacent to the transmission line between the filter plant and the city.

As of August 31, there were 10,152 metered services.

Some other statistics of the system: The filter plant has a capacity of 18,000,000 gallons a day; capacity of Fort Hill Reservoir is 3,500,000 gallons; Ridgedale, 7,500,000 gallons; Fort Hill standpipe, 500,000 gallons; Ridgedale elevated tank, 100,000 gallons; Piedmont Avenue elevated tank, 75,000 gallons; and Braddock Road elevated tank, 100,000 gallons.

Sewer Life Romantic? Phew!

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS

LONDON (UPI)—"Working in a sewer is never dull," said the London County Council pamphlet.

George Heath agreed, but with reservations.

Paris had her Jean Valjean, the fabled convict who made the sewers his home for a time. In Vienna's post-war era of intrigue, the notorious Harry Lime eluded occupation agents and finally met his death in the dank underworld.

But London?

Heath, a ruddy-cheeked Cockney who has worked in London's sewers for more than 30 years, said they have their moments but couldn't match Paris or Vienna.

Heath scratched the grey hair under his grimy flat cap and shifted his hip boots in the mud. His voice echoed through the dripping tunnels that disappeared in darkness all around him.

In one direction, water gurgled peacefully. Somewhere rats scampered and splashed in the pitch black.

"It's been like this ever since I can remember," Heath said. No spies, no fugitives, no murderers.

Just rats, and pockets of gas that explode if you're not careful, and floods.

" 'Course, it gets exciting when royalty comes to town," said Heath. "Remember that big French bloke — DeGaulle was it? The day he drove by, they sent plainclothes officers through here through all the muck looking for bombs. Three times in one day. Good athletes, they was, too."

Ghosts? In a nation that treasures its ghosts and tells tales about them, surely . . .

"We have to make our own ghosts," Heath said, chuckling. "We wait till some bloke blows out his lamp, and then we run a finger along his back or tap him on the shoulder."

Heath has caught many a rat with his cap—"the little blighters are too clever to fall for those wire cages"—but he's never found gold, or diamond rings, or even false teeth.

"You never find that sort of thing any more," he said. "the plumbing's too efficient."

In London, he said, all the characters are "up top," not running around down in the sewers.

"You meet the craziest ones up there you'll find anywhere," he said.

Like the students, brandishing beer bottles, who staged a dance around a manhole one night in Oxford Circus while Heath was trying to unblock a storm drain.

Or the gentleman in Leicester Square, a bit the worse for wear after an evening at the pub, who insisted on helping Heath's gang lift buckets of sludge from one hole.

"He slopped it all over his suit, but it gave him a real kick," Heath said, shaking his head. "Then the bloke went back and sent us back a bottle of whisky . . . cor blimey!"

For Heath, it's just a dirty job, with a pension for life at the end.

"It ain't dull, he said, "but it ain't like Paris."

Annoying biting midges bite in daylight, electric light, darkness and under the pleasant shade of mangrove trees.

A school of music for the Western Baptist Association of Allegany and Garrett counties is being held at First Baptist Church, Bedford Street, with Slater C. Mounts, of Talbot Baptist Church, Norfolk, Va., as director.

Seven churches of the association have representatives of their choirs, pastors and choir directors attending. The sessions, from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. daily, will conclude Friday.

Mounts is minister of music in his home church where he directs 12 choirs, including four English handbell choirs. He is a past president of the Virginia Music Conference.

Mounts is a former musical director for the Gloucester County (Va.) preaching mission, past director of the Norfolk preaching mission, faculty member of the music conferences at Hillcrest, Southern Baptist Summer Assembly in North Carolina, and Eagle Eyrie, Virginia Baptist Assembly grounds.

Earlier this year, Mounts was one of 20 Southern Baptist ministers of music chosen to attend an evangelistic crusade in Scotland on a tour of 10 cities in that country.

Other faculty members at the local school of music are Rev. Henry G. Laube, pastor of First Baptist Church, Westernport, who is teaching "Music in Worship" for ministers and leaders of Sunday School departments, and John Clark, minister of music at First Baptist here, who is teaching a beginner course in reading music for juniors and intermediates.

Mounds is teaching "Beginner Music Leader" for choir directors and adult members of choirs.

Churches represented in the school are First, Second, Grace and Bedford Road churches, Cumberland; First and Christ Memorial, Westernport; English, Frostburg, and Deep Creek Lake Church, Garrett County.

JOSEPH S. MEADOWS

Amcelle Promotes Two In Accounting Section

Two employes of the accounting section of the Amcelle Plant of Celanese Fibers Company have been promoted, according to Hudson Nix, industrial relations manager.

Roy M. Walburn, formerly supervisor of payroll, tabulating and billing, has moved up to the position of accountant, systems and procedures, replacing O. Thomason Forman, who has been transferred to Charlotte, N. C.

A native of Cumberland, Walburn joined Celanese in 1928 after graduating from Pennsylvania Avenue School. He served as a clerk in the payroll department, as a tabulating machine operator, and as assistant supervisor before becoming supervisor of the tabulating, payroll and billing procedures.

Walburn served in the Air Force for three years during World War II. He resides on DeHaven Road with his wife and two children.

Replacing Walburn as supervisor of payroll, tabulating and billing is Joseph S. Meadows, a native of Virginia. Meadows joined the Tubize Corporation, later made a part of Celanese Corporation, at Hopewell, Va., in 1931 and came to Amcelle in 1955. From tabulating machine operator, he was promoted to supervisor of tabulating in 1958.

"Our type of shoe store should do very well here," Enelow said, "as we specialize in fit and service." The public is welcome to come in and browse around, he added.

A six-foot Weather Bird will distribute balloons to children and all purchasers will receive gifts. Men will have their choice of cigaret lighters or three-foot shoehorns. Air Force-NASA Rivalry Should End

United States moon rendezvous timetables are undergoing a reshuffling of priorities which may enhance the possibilities of an earlier than expected landing. This is the initial result of the tremendous success of the Saturn booster rocket.

Perhaps more important, from the viewpoint of harmony between the many organizations contributing to the moon campaign, an extraordinary concert of purpose has developed between two of the largest government agencies concerned with the development of moon rocketry.

For years the Air Force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration have operated at arm's length on projects of a similar nature. The Air Force developed a natural suspicion of the fledgling aeronautics team, placed under civilian administration, which seemed to be in direct competition with Air Force prerogatives in matters related to air flight.

NASA was developed by enthusiastic sponsors in the executive and legislative branches of government into a mammoth top-priority rocket and missile agency almost overnight. Thus a series of jealous jurisdictional disputes between the two teams developed what amounted to two space programs designed to accomplish similar ends. Over the long run, the competition developed between NASA and the Air Force may have acted as a spur to renewed vigor by each to reach a given target first, with resultant general increase in overall preliminary space attainments.

With many of the initial problems of such a distant goal at least partially solved by the Saturn success, it is becoming more important that a greater degree of coordination be established between all civilian-military groups which have something to offer the moon project.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Reorganizing State Dept.

Circular No. 27 of the State Department indicates that a reorganization of that Department is taking place and that unnecessary positions are being abolished, which is all to the good if it is done properly and in the interest of efficiency and competence. If jobs are shifted from State to the CIA without removing personnel, there is no actual economy. As a matter of fact, the CIA requires simultaneous reorganization with a view to eliminating from it doctrinaire personalities who use government positions to pursue private causes. Whether they are Left or Right Wing, clerks should not be making policy which the top men accept as their own.

The State Department has outgrown its usefulness and has become a very confused organization in which policy is manipulated by Deskmen without regard to national responsibility. Then the top echelons cover up the errors of the lower staff men so that public criticism will not become too noisy and excited. As some put it, the men on the Fifth Floor do not know what those on the Fourth Floor are doing.

No country can afford such confusion and the Cuban fiasco brought State Department and CIA inefficiency to a crisis. The public has not forgotten the Cuba fiasco and is not likely to. It will continue to plague the Kennedy Administration. Covering up to protect those in State and CIA who are responsible for the Cuban fiasco is an administrative and political error. Apparently the current reorganization of the State Department has something to do with the errors made by Deskmen, although opponents of the Administration insist that the reason for the changes is political. They maintain that the purpose is to make room for new political appointees, which would not be unusual in our government.

If that is correct, it is faulty administration, but a reorganization of the State Department can be very useful at the present time. Another criticism of the State Department is that its budgetary difficulties arise from the costly trips to Africa by Soapy Williams and the various trips by Governor Harriman, Adlai Stevenson, Vice President Johnson and others who traipse about the Earth.

Some of these trips, such as Vice President Johnson's, have been of great value to this country. Those of Soapy Williams have not been productive of any particular value in Africa. The regional conferences of Chester Bowles have thus far been fruitless. There is a lot of motion in the State Department, but motion of itself is no evidence of performance. On the other hand, precisely how would the critics of the Department reorganize it so that it can be a more effective agency of government?

The job of the State Department is not to make war. Its task is to get along as well as it can with other nations, friends and foes. Its personnel must be trained to seek peace and agreements, not to stir up trouble and disagreement. Other departments of government may be engaged in espionage as in propaganda, but State must move in a mannerly and friendly fashion. Its men must maintain friendly personal relations with men of other countries, even enemies, and there must always be a readiness to get down and talk.

It is the President's function to decide on policy and to instruct State as to what it should do. The President, not Adlai Stevenson, must be responsible for national policy and national conduct. If, however, the President chooses to accept Adlai Stevenson's advice, as Woodrow Wilson accepted Colonel House's advice, that is the President's responsibility and it is up to people to determine whether his judgment is correct or false. In a word, the President may seek and accept advice where he chooses, but the responsibility for what happens is his not his advisers. For instance, if Adlai Stevenson was wrong about Cuba, as he undoubtedly was, it is the President who is responsible for accepting his advice, just as he is responsible for the errors Chester Bowles has made in the Two China Policy. Ours is a government of fixed responsibility and that responsibility cannot be delegated to associates, assistants or underlings. Franklin D. Roosevelt expanded government beyond the absolute necessities of efficient administration and the Administration has continued along those lines but that does not affect responsibility. This is often forgotten in the motives of so-called important figures who speak for themselves only.

Our Big Gun Against Castro

Senators, Atomic Energy, Desert Create Boom In Albuquerque, N.M.

By Drew Pearson

ALBUQUERQUE —Things have changed around this town since I used to come here to try to persuade a certain lady to change her name to Pearson.

The smell of the pinon wood from adobe chimneys which used to pervade the atmosphere on brisk fall days has given way to automobile exhaust fumes. The main street, once sleepy in the autumn sunlight is now as choked with traffic as 5th Avenue. And the Navajo Indians who used to sell beads and post cards at the Santa Fe Railroad station now find that passenger traffic has shifted to the airport.

Albuquerque has grown up. From the complacent country metropolis of 30,000 25 years ago, it has bulged into 201,000 at the last census with 90,000 more overflowing into the suburbs. Few American cities have mushroomed so rapidly, and three things did it: atomic energy, the desert, and the Senators it sent to Washington.

When Franklin Roosevelt put Dr. Robert Oppenheimer in charge of building the first atomic bomb, he picked the top of a mesa, Los Alamos, where he once went to school, as the most secluded spot in America, and this began the trek of atomic energy to New Mexico. It has continued ever since, aided and abetted by the fact that New Mexican deserts give plenty of room for testing and by the industry and potency of New Mexico's two Senators.

Sen. Clinton Anderson, a member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, knows more about the atom than the former AEC Chairman, Adm. Lewis Strauss, whom he once blocked as Secretary of Commerce. Sen. Dennis Chavez, a power on the Appropriations Committee, puts across the money for atomic energy. So what New Mexico wants, between these two Senators, New Mexico usually gets.

Cheats Undertaker

Anderson came to New Mexico as a young newspaperman consumptive from South Dakota 40 years ago, expecting to die. It was his inquisitive reporting which helped uncover the Albert Fall Teapot Dome scandal in the Harding Administration. Later, he came to the House of Representatives, became Secretary of Agriculture under Truman, in 1948 was elected to the Senate.

His colleague, Dennis Chavez, is the only Spanish-American ever elected to the U. S. Senate and is proud of the fact. Once, when asked about his nationality, he replied: "American since before Plymouth Rock." While visiting in Spain he also announced: "I'm a Catholic, a Spaniard, and a Yankee gentleman."

On another occasion while speaking in New Mexico, he announced: "Believe me: ladies and gentlemen, I am not of Anglo-Saxon origin."

He said this as if someone had just accused him of committing a heinous crime.

Senate Fixture

A wispy little man who looks as if he would blow away with his own cigar smoke, Chavez has been in the Senate 26 years which makes him among the four most senior Senators. Various candidates have tried to defeat him, including the redoubtable and popular Johnny Walker of Santa Fe, now state land commissioner. All have failed. Chavez can remain in the Senate as long as he lives.

Not always consistent, the senoir Senator from New Mexico plays his politics according to his family, his friends, and personal whim. But usually he's to be found on the side of the little guy. Though he urged the recognition of Dictator Franco of Spain, he introduced legislation to permit Spanish republican exiles from Franco to be admitted into the United States.

And when it was most unpopular to oppose the late Sen. Joe McCarthy he made a speech attacking one of McCarthy's star witnesses, Louis Budenz, ex-editor of the Communist Daily Worker, who supposedly had been reformed by the Jesuits. Chavez got all sorts of pressure from Jesuit leaders and was denounced by Archbishop Edward Byrnes of New Mexico, but didn't retreat.

Speaking at San Antonio to Texas worshippers of the Alamo, Chavez paid his respects to those who retreat. "If ther'd been a back door to the building," he said, "there wouldn't have been any Alamo."

The senior Senator from New Mexico was almost lynched.

Project Gnome

Things you may not know about the nuclear explosion 1,200 feet underground to which foreign observers are invited; though announced by President Kennedy Oct. 25, work on this project began in the spring of 1958 . . . Salt beds in Michigan and Colorado and along the Gulf of Mexico were also explored for the test, but an area 25 miles from Carlsbad, N. M., was picked because of the sparsity of population . . . A cement company from Wilmington, Del., came all the way to New Mexico to cement the 1,200-foot shaft, also the 1,116-foot tunnel which runs from the bottom of the shaft, horizontally, to the site of the explosion . . . This tunnel is eight feet by 12 and easy to walk through. The shaft extending down to the tunnel is 10 feet in diameter . . . When the bomb goes off, it will form a pool of about 6,000 tons of molten salt at a temperature of about 1,440 degrees Fahrenheit . . . About 120 tons of water will also be present in the form of superheated steam. One purpose of the experiment is to see whether heat generated from an A-explosion can be bottled up inside the earth, then released to create power . . . It will be about two weeks after the explosion before gases subside enough for observers to do any testing. Foreign visitors, including the Russians, may have to hang around a long time.

Are We Gambling With Preparedness Again?

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — It's easy enough to applaud the saving of $780 million in the defense budget as a step in the direction of much needed economizing in government spending. But the issue isn't as simple as it seems on the surface. Here are the real questions that have yet to be answered:

1. Is the United States taking a chance on her security by putting an arbitrary limit on the number of manned bombers and on the future development of manned-bomber weapons?

2. Was there any other $780 million in the entire $89 billion budget that might have been saved instead and a decision made in favor of national security?

3. What right has a President to refuse to spend money appropriated by law for national defense?

Just twelve years ago — on October 31, 1949 — when Harry Truman was President, this correspondent wrote:

"Must a President of the United States obey the mandate of a law of Congress and spend the funds it authorizes for the armed services? Or may a President disregard the instructions given by Congress and withhold expenditures as he sees fit?

"A precedent of far-reaching importance is involved in Mr. Truman's announcement that, although he signed the military appropriation bill which provides funds for a 58-group Air Force, he will not spend the extra $648 million and will allow only a 48-group Air Force. . . .

"The Congress made a mistake in voting for a 58 instead of a 48-group Air Force, but the law is on the statute books and if the President didn't like it he should have made clear that he would veto the bill and Congress would have had the choice of overriding the veto or amending the bill to meet the President's wishes."

Less than nine months after the foregoing was written the Korean War broke out and America was in need of every bit of military strength in the air that it could mobilize. Looking back now many a military expert in air power would say that the United States cut its budget too much before 1950 and handicapped itself.

The point is that guessing what will or will not ensure national safety on the military side is a hazardous matter. The moment the budget-cutters come into the picture they put the burden of proof on the military men, who possibly could get along without the extra strength but cannot be sure that war isn't coming. Yet they must take the risk in the planning and in the execution of defense policies approved by the President.

There are today 600 B-52 heavy bombers in inventory — the real backbone of the U.S. Strategic Air Command. They fly 10,000 miles without refueling, carry bomb loads estimated at 50 megatons to targets in Russia. Production will reach 744 planes by August next and will be halted. Then there's the B-70 supersonic-bomber program. It is still in the development stage. Congress has urged an all-out program for a "full weapons system" — in other words, bombers of this type to be built as soon as possible. But now the executive branch of the government has cut back this project. It involves $180 million. Was there no other item in the $89 billion budget that could have been saved so that national security in an advanced field of Air Power might be assured?

This is an era of great uncertainty as to the prospect of war. The House Armed Services Committee last May said:

"Without in any way intending to minimize the importance of the intercontinental ballistic missile, and with full realization that it may represent our highest order of deterrent and offensive capability at some time in the future, the committee has posed to itself and poses the question to the House:

"'Are we proceeding too rapidly in the area of what is essentially an unknown weapon at the cost of weapons whose capabilities are tried and known?'"

Congress decided not to take a chance. It reasoned that "it's better to be safe than sorry." Now the administration has returned to the risk-taking doctrines that were proved mistaken when the Korean War broke out in 1950.

Military men are not convinced that man will ever be replaced in war or that missiles can be absolutely depended on to hit their targets. Manned bombers can be turned around, can switch targets and can do their own reconnaissance.

Was there no other $780 million of appropriations in the non-defense budget that could have been impounded? And does the President have the right to impound any expenditure that has been specifically authorized by law? Where, it may be asked, is such a right given in the Constitution, except in the provision which requires that the House and Senate be notified of a presidential veto within ten days after legislation is passed so Congress, as a co-ordinate branch of the government, may express its will?

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BUILDING BLUES — When the Central Intelligence Agency finally won government permission to get itself a new building and move out of a scattering of antiquated structures in downtown Washington, the citizens near the selected site in Langley, Va., were fearful that it would disrupt the rustic peace and quiet of their hideaway. Now they're sure.

The building is now completed and occupied, with a sizable increase in traffic through a community of large homes and estates that occupies the bluffs on the Virginia side of the Potomac River.

But this is not what is griping the residents. Virginia is a "bottle" state, and the only way one can drink hard liquor in a restaurant or inn is to have a bottle there in one's name.

Obviously, the employes in the CIA Building aren't permitted to have bottles at their place of work, and just as obviously the stresses and strains of espionage work require a touch of relaxating libation now and again.

To meet this need, a private group has formed a club, to be known as Langley Lodge, Inc., and has sought a permit for a private "bottle" club. It would cater exclusively to top CIA and other government and business officials.

Fallout Shelter Isn't Sign Of Cowardice

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

We should become more realistic and less panicky about the possibility of thermonuclear war. A 20 megaton hydrogen bomb is a terrible weapon. It creates a blast pressure up to 10 pounds per square inch over an area of 725 square miles. Most buildings in the United States would collapse at a pressure of 2 pounds per square inch.

In addition, houses may catch fire up to 25 miles from the place where the bomb strikes. This area covers 1,900 square miles. Radiation also is a threat. The area of the damage from the blast would be contaminated at one hour after the explosion with 5,000 r or more. The lethal dose for man is 450 r for six minutes. In other words, get to a shelter as quickly as possible. Even a bomb that lands 50 miles away is dangerous.

A basement or underground shelter is cheaper and safer than a blast resistant house. The house would need walls and ceilings of 20 inches of poured concrete or 3 feet of earth. Windows nullify the resistance of the house. The blast will go through them; even though the house remains, the inhabitants would be killed.

On the other hand, if a building is reinforced to resist 10 pounds of pressure (instead of 2) the survival chance increases 87 per cent. The cost of such a venture goes up 20 per cent.

It is too expensive to make an existing home fireproof, especially if made of wood. It could be painted white to reflect heat or remodeled to replace the siding with brick, aluminum, or asbestos shingles. Nonflammable window shades and curtains should be used. And don't forget to clear up the rubbish in the yard.

New homes should be built with all available materials to protect against fire and blast. This is not silly nor a sign of cowardice. It is just common sense.

KIDNEY TEST

V. I. writes: What is the dehydration test which is done in the eighth or ninth month of pregnancy?

REPLY

I assume you refer to the kidney test in which the physician determines how well the renal organs can concentrate urine. This is an important function of the kidneys, so that the fluid content of our tissues can be preserved. Otherwise we might lose all the water in the body every time we urinated.

MOUTH DEFECT

M. A. V. writes: Does a cleft palate go hand in hand with a harelip?

REPLY

Not necessarily. The lip and the hard palate are involved in approximately 50 per cent.

PUFFY ANKLES

M. S. writes: Every day my feet and legs swell so that I can hardly wear my shoes. What can I do about this?

REPLY

First see your physician to determine the cause. The puffiness can be remedied easily when the cause is a failing heart, poor circulation, or a disorder of the kidneys or liver.

HEAD LOWERING

H. C. writes: What is the purpose of putting the head lower than the body when a person faints?

REPLY

To bring blood to the brain and other important organs via gravity.

TEMPORARY BLINDNESS

E. J. M. writes: What would cause complete loss of vision for about 30 seconds?

REPLY

Spasm of the retinal or cerebral vessels.

COFFEE AND SWEATING

M. O. writes: Will excessive coffee drinking cause B. O.?

REPLY

Only if it increases perspiration. Caffeine dilates blood vessels, which may be associated with increased sweating.

SKIN WRITING

E. S. writes: Is there any effective treatment of dermographism?

REPLY

There is no cure but the condition can be controled. The term means writing on the skin. The victim is sensitive to pressure and develops a red line or swelling when a blunt object is stroked over the skin.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Writers are famous procrastinators, and seize on any kind of excuse to put off getting down to work. Novelist Graham Greene found a brand new way of procrastinating. A friend visited him at his English country estate and reported: "Every day Graham would disappear mysteriously for hours from the house. When I finally asked him what he was up to, he explained that he could not write another word until a certain combination of numbers — 987 — appeared to him by accident. He was spending hours by the roadside waiting for those numbers to pass on a license plate.

"Well, it's a poor country road, and there are not many motor cars. So Graham didn't write a single word for the entire week."

George Bernard Shaw was no lover of motion pictures. "Films bore me," he explained once, "because they show interminably people getting in and out of limousines, trains, and buses. I am not interested in how people get to different places, but what they do when they get there."

Dig We Must

By John Crosby

Civil defense is growing into one of the great boondoggles of our whole history, and we've had some honeys. Now the Defense Department has got into the act for the first time, marking shelter spots in factories, office buildings, and churches. It hopes to list space for 50 million people by December 1962. Now what do you suppose that means? They'll paint little signs like those in the last war all over the corridors?

"Dig We Must — Our Own Graves," I keep saying to myself. As a matter of fact, all this digging in the backyard reminds me strongly of the Maginot Line. The Maginot Line gave the French — the French, hell, the whole Western world — a great sense of false security. It cost billions that the French could ill afford. And it did no good whatsoever. Any more than these shelters will.

Civil defense since World War II has been fairly hilarious. Remember when we were going to build all those blast shelters? Then a hydrogen bomb blew an island out of the Pacific and the blast shelters were dropped as impractical. Than we were going to evacuate our cities—one of the dizziest suggestions ever contemplated. A civil defense director commented hopelessly: "We can't even get people out of San Francisco after a football game." Gradually, that lunacy subsided.

Now fallout shelters. I rather think this idiocy will continue for a while because I suspect many people are making loads of money out of it. The world's first "Survival Supermarket" opened out in Los Angeles where they are consistently first in looney ideas. The "Survival Supermarket" featured pre-packaged food, the daily pack ($5 per person) or the all-family weekly carton ($40), plastic blood containers ($10 for individuals or $50 for the family size), four models of shelters on sale (priced from $4,000 to $40,000), and dental chairs, guaranteed convertible to operating tables, air purifiers, generators, and a family barbecue unit guaranteed usable inside the shelter tra la ($15).

As a matter of fact, my Hollywood spies tell me that the fallout shelter has replaced the barbecue pit as a status symbol of the film colony. Some of the world's handsomest barbecue pits are out there and now, the fall shelters are already beginning to stagger the sensibilities. Miss Jane Powell, the thrush, has already rushed into print with details about the ducky retreat she's got under the driveway. "I've got an interior decorator coming in and we'll furnish it with couches, rollaway beds, and a TV set. I'm planning to decorate it with third dimensional paper to make the room look bigger.

One of the most trenchant and witty sermons to come to my attention on this subject was delivered at the Signal Hill Methodist Church, in East St. Louis, Ill., by the Rev. Robert Gordon, who said: "'The Wall Street Journal' said recently that fallout shelter builders strive hard to guarantee buyers secrecy. You see, you don't want the neighbors to know if you are building one. It's like in the early days of TV: you tried to have it delivered at night so all the neighborhood kids wouldn't be in your livingroom the next day. Well, we are at the same point, only in a more serious business. They'll come at night if asked. A Milwaukee builder advertises that he will come in an unmarked truck, and that if nosey neighbors inquire as to what they are doing, they will say they are TV repairmen.

"Four hundred Nevada businessmen were told recently by a civil defense officer that what Nevada needed was a trained militia of 5,000 men to ward off the invasion of Californians who would be coming to their state for refuge from their holocaust. Citizens of Beaumont, California, are planning a similar kind of resistance against the people of Los Angeles. It's almost getting so you can't enjoy a war anymore. It used to be that you could depend on a war to unite the nation. Now we find that while we're boiling and frying another people, we'll be hard at civil war ourselves, fighting and scrambling for survival."

A lady from Pennsylvania writes, "Our neighboring town has purchased an old oil truck, which was filled with water to put out the fire-storm created by a nuclear blast." Oh, I tell you, everyone is making a pretty penny out of this thing. Congress has approved $200,000,000 for fallout shelters. I'm looking at an ad right this minute: "It's a Gimbel's exclusive—Fallout Detection Meter $49.95. It tells you if the atmosphere is safe, where it's safe, and how much exposure is safe . . ."

The CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 70 What single action in the war was more memorable than Pickett's charge? Following heavy artillery preparation that alerted the Union defenders to where a major assault was to be directed, some 15,000 Confederate infantry formed in battle line by George Pickett under orders of James Longstreet, attacked at 1:45 p. m. July 3, 1863. Under blazing sun, across a half mile of open field, over wooden fences, against a Union force waiting for them behind stone fences and dug breastworks the Southerners strode in tight formation as resolutely and unwavering as the men of the Light Brigade celebrated so ringingly in Tennyson's ballad. Even within range of canister, Pickett's men maintained their lines. They forced themselves on, at dreadful loss, to a little clump of trees close by the town of Gettysburg—"the high tide of the Confederacy."

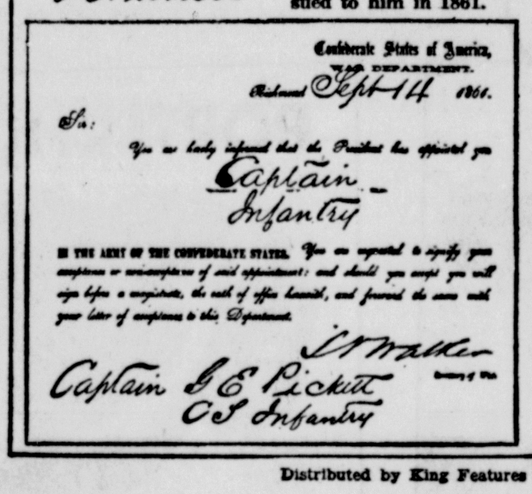

Pickett, his autograph, and facsimile of commission in C.S.A. army issued to him in 1861.

Of that greatly heroic hour, more later in this space. There was other reason to remember George E. Pickett. The Virginian who graduated No. 59 in his West Point class of 59 members won distinction as an officer in the Mexican War and against Western Indians. (Before their scalpers he flaunged long, curly ringlets that fell to his shoulders.)

Pickett rode east in 1861 to serve the Confederacy and quickly earned promotion to colonel, to brigadier, to major general. He was the favorite division commander of Longstreet.

Grant had such regard for Pickett that after the war he sought to place his old enemy in a federal office. Pickett declined it, also a commission as general in the Egyptian army. He spent his last years, like Lee, trying to efface the scars of war from his beloved Virginia.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(Substituting for vacationing Louella Parsons)

HOLLYWOOD — The enthusiasm of Sam Goldwyn Jr., over the purchase of Howard Fast's new novel "April Morning" is contagious. Young Goldwyn, following in the footsteps of his father in "class" pictures, showed up with the morning coffee to tell me personally about his plans for filming the Fast book.

"It's about a small town near Boston during the first 24 hours of the American Revolution," he said, "but it is a drama of People, not of war. It could be happening in the world today, this story of a family, particularly a father and his teenage son, English, of course, who at first can't understand why they should be fighting their own countrymen. Then they learn that a just cause can be more important than bloodlines."

Very interesting this quote from Nancy Kwan in a Hong Kong newspaper, coming on the heels of boyfriend Maxmillian Schell's remark in Rome that there's no marriage ahead for them. Said Nancy, "I guess I've still got to find the right guy." Which, on the surface, doesn't seem to be Mr. Schell.

Meantime, she's winding up her visit to her father in Hong Kong and plans to be in New York at the pre-release premiere of Ross Hunter's "Flower Drum Song" at the Music Hall in New York on Nov. 9. There's nothing like a change of faces and places to assurage a lady's—shall we say — wounded pride.

From Louella:

'Robert Goelet, Sir Lancelot in the Broadway hit 'Camelot,' goes to the coast next week to discuss his role opposite Judy Garland in the animated picture that Mirisch Brothers are making for United Artists' release. It has a working title of 'Gay Paree,' with an original score by Harold Arlen and Yip Harburg.

"Goelet's personal manager, Norman Rosemont, told us at the Sullivan show, on which Goelet sang so charmingly, that he's had many movie offers, but as yet has not signed any contract. Tne reason is that the Warner Bros. movie version will not be made for some time, and another that Warners will not sign anyone without an option.

"Appropos of that, I heard "My Fair Lady" is practically in Jack Warner's pocket. No one has met his price of $5,500,000."

Mrs. Mary Roebling, most prominent woman banker, and member of the stock exchange, was the hostess at a luncheon honoring Irene Dunne and myself, that will stand out in my memory. She had many career women, and each was called upon to answer three questions—why they were optimistic, to name the three greatest women in their field, and tell about the incident when each fell in love.

"Among the guests were Mrs. Ogden Reid, wife of the former head of the N.Y. Tribune, Mrs. Conrad Thibault, wife of the concert singer, Mrs. Robert Wagner, the mayor's wife, Mrs. Louis Mattox Miller, of Reader's Digest; Mrs. Richard Berlin, Mrs. Samuel Newhouse, Mrs. Robert (Millie) Considine, who writes a very amusing column for the diplomat, Mrs. Tobe Davis, Mrs. Frances Moody Newman, Mrs. Julian Adler, Mrs. Owen Cheatham, outstanding woman on all charities and owner of Salvador Dali jewel collection, Mrs. Leslie Gould, Verbena Hebberd, of the Hilton Hotel organization.

"Others—Mrs. Jules Stein, Mrs. Martin Von Dehn, here from California, who brought an advance copy of my book for me to autograph; Mrs. Tom Meek (the former Mrs. Russell Havenstrite), Mrs. Louis B. Mayer, radiant indeed, who dashed from the luncheon to the plane for California, Margaret Ettinger, Mrs. Ted Saucier, Mrs. Iva Haut, and others. I was very proud of my sex, and at the brilliant, witty and intelligent speeches made," says the busy Miss P.

Keely Smith was sufficiently recuperated from her illness to spend the weekend at Lake Tahoe visiting her old friends, Ella Fitzgerald and Rowan and Martin, headlining the show at Harrah's Club.

Dan Rowan spent all his time between shows on the long distance 'phone talking to Phyllis McGuire, of the singing McGuire Sisters, in London. They'll marry if they ever land in the same spot at the same time.

Tahoe was over-run with baseball players, guests of honor at a banquet at Harrah's. Among them, Warren Spahn, Wally Moon, Willy Mays, Alvin Dark, Lefty Grove—and manager Bill Rigney. But only the show girls were throwing the curves.

Snapshots of New York and Hollywood collected at random:

Miss LOP reports from New York: "Directly back of us at the Ed Sullivan show sat Capt. Thomas J. Walker III and Mrs. Walker. Capt. Walker is commander of the recently completed U.S.S. Constellation, and got a big hand from the audience.

"So did Rita Gam and Jimmy McHugh (and you, too, boss), the latter thrilled when his song 'Don't Blame Me' was sung by the Everly Brothers on the show. The Everlys, who in a short time have sold millions of records, leave almost immediately for a two-year stretch in the Marine Corps. The Ritz Brothers were also a stand-out comedy hit on Ed's show, M.C.'d by George Gobel during Ed's absence, and later we caught the whole nightclub act of the hilarious Ritzes.

"The party hosted by Molly and Charlie Berns at '21' of course honored Mrs. Harry Joe Brown. It also turned into a wedding celebration for Julie Wilson, who married Irish actor Michael Macaloney about a month ago. There was a wedding cake served to the tune of the wedding march.

"I didn't get a chance to speak to Joan Fontaine, one of the guests, because a bad toothache forced me to leave early. Milly, as always, was a delightful hostess as well as being one of the best groomed women in New York.

"I was privileged to have luncheon with his Eminence Francis Francis Cardinal Spellman who again goes overseas at Christmas to visit our boys so far away from home."

You might tell 'em in New York, Boss, that Steve Allen and his glamorous Jane Meadows bring their nightclub act, previously seen only in Las Vegas, into the Copacabana on Feb. 8.

Had word from Dina Merrill that she didn't check into the Bel Air Hotel wearing a black wig because she thinks that sort of nonsense is just as silly as I do.

The only movie ever filmed in East Africa, "The Lion" started shooting Monday with Bill Holden Capucine and Trevor Howard emoting on the specially built sound stage on the grounds of the Mt. Kenya Safari Club.

Due to a not-too-clear connection during the dictation from New York on the engagement of Mrs. Louis B. Mayer and Michael Nidorf, Mike's name came out Nidors instead of Nidorf, which is correct.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dan Sorkin, still a radio disc jockey on a Chicago radio station, commutes to Hollywood each week to serve as announcer on humorist Bob Newhart's half-hour TV show on the NBC network. He got the job because he was the first to give Newhart a break on the air two years ago, playing some tapes of the comedy routines on his radio show. The two have been close friends ever since.

"ABC's Wide World of Sports" will be reactivated by the network Jan. 7, appearing weekly on Sundays from 5 to 6:30 instead of on Saturdays as formerly.

The NBC team of Chet Huntley and David Brinkley will be the target of the annual lampoon dinner-show of the New York chapter of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. The event will be on Nov. 30 at the Astor Hotel. Milton Berle, Arthur Godfrey and Ed Sullivan were "honored" at previous such gatherings.

ABC's one-hour "The Roaring 20s," which began its second season this fall, is destined not to complete it. Plans are to drop the program after the first 13 weeks, sometime in January.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♠

Today's hand was submitted to me by North, who was looking for support in his indictment of partner for failing to bring home a three no trump contract in a recent tournament.

North-South reached three no trump on direct bidding. West opened the ten of spades, which was won by the ace in dummy. On a low diamond to the king, West followed with the ten. There seemed a good chance that the queen would fall next round, so South in the hope of scoring an overtrick, played the ace.

When West showed out, the contract was lost, for East had two diamond stoppers, and declarer could muster no more than eight tricks.

North's complaint properly pointed out that after the appearance of West's ten of diamonds, declarer could have fulfilled contract against any distribution by merely leading a low diamond toward dummy.

If West puts up the queen, declarer brings in four diamond tricks for a grand total of nine.

If West shows out, dummy's jack goes to the adverse queen and declarer retains a finessing position over East's nine to pick up the rest of the suit.

If the problem developed at rubber bridge, North's contention would be sound beyond the slightest shadow of a doubt. Thirty points is little enough to pay for complete safety. But, at match points, I would not be quick to make a ruling.

Playing safe for the contract might not be very rewarding. If all the other players in the contest succeeded in dropping a doubleton queen and making 10 tricks, mere fulfillment of the contract would yield a bottom score, as bad a result as being set.

It is sufficient to lay down a general rule of behavior in this situation. My own practice is to play safe where the contract may be difficult for most players to reach, but to play for maximum where it is a moral certainty that everyone will be in game.

Oven Barbecued Chicken Baked With Exotic Sauce

Barbecued chicken takes on a different flavor when oven cooked. You don't need a complicated sauce for it, either.

A new one made of olive oil, corn sirup and soy sauce couldn't be easier for the ingredients are simply blended together.

Olive oil keeps chicken juicy and moist. Corn sirup adds a bit of sweetness while soy sauce has the salty taste that's needed.

Oven Barbecued Chicken

Brown cut-up chicken in butter on all sides. Remove to baking dish. Pour over the chicken a mixture of 2 tablespoons soy sauce, ½ cup olive oil, ¼ teaspoon ground ginger and 2 teaspoons white corn sirup. Cover and bake at 325 degrees about 1 hour or until chicken is tender. Baste chicken occasionally with the sauce.

Ham-Parmesan Sandwich

This lunchbox sandwich was "made" for the man with a deluxe appetite. Featured in the Ham-Parmesan treat are slices of dark rye bread, spread with a special cheese butter: Soft butter blended with a generous amount of grated Parmesan cheese, a sprinkle of brown sugar, and just a touch of ground ginger. A hearty slice of boiled ham supplies the "center" attraction.

Pin-Ball Tea Punch

Beat the let down and plain weariness that follows bowling, basketball or whatever. Plan a refreshing punch and snack party for your teenagers. It's such an easy way to entertain the gang at home because the work is mostly handled by them.

The physical and psychological lift that tea, plain or fancy, can give is no myth. Since tea was introduced to the Western world some centuries ago, the fact has appeared in story, poem and song hundreds of times over, and tersely summed up by one of last year's Olympic games winners in one brief sentence "Tea psyches me up." Let your teens try it — even though you may have to move out of the living room for a Rock 'n Roll session.

When they come trouping in, have a big bowl of tea punch waiting, along with a supply of coconut marshmallow cookies for toasting over the fire, frozen waffles for the toaster, and stacks of doughnuts.

- 2 quarts freshly drawn cold water
- ¼ cup tea leaves, 15 teabags or 5 tablespoons instant tea
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup water
- ½ cup pineapple juice
- 2 2-inch cinnamon sticks
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- ½ cup orange juice
- ¼ cup lemon juice

For tea leaves or teabags, bring 2 quarts of water to a full rolling boil. Pour over tea, cover and let brew three-to-five minutes; strain. For instant tea, merely dissolve in cold water. Combine sugar, 1 cup water, cinnamon and fruit rinds. Simmer 15 minutes. Add syrup and fruit juices to tea and chill thoroughly. Serve in punch bowl over ice cubes, or make pretty ice ring like this: Arrange seasonal or well drained frozen or canned fruit in a shallow layer of water in the bottom of a ring mold or angel food cake pan. Put in freezer until fruit pattern is frozen in place. Add more ice water and return to freezer until entire ring is solid. Unmold by running a little water over bottom of pan.

Walking Apple Salad

A Walking Apple Salad is a good traveler — whatever the way to school. To assemble it, carefully core a large eating apple, then slice it, crosswise, into 4 equal-sized slices — keeping them in order. Stack slices, sandwich style, as you spread one of these fillings between slices at each "level": Peanut butter, sprinkled with flaked coconut; orange marmalade; and sharp cheese spread. Stand 5 or 6 carrot sticks upright through apple center and tuck in 6 or 8 raisins. Wrap in foil or waxed paper for easy carrying and eating out of hand.

Meat Loaf Goes Fancy With Pickles

The cook-in season has arrived officially now that the kids are back in school. With mom's return as major domo of the kitchen, you can be sure the family will be looking to her for some good, old fashioned meat dishes.

Meat loaf is a fine example of a simple, homespun entree everyone enjoys. It can be dressed up with unusual seasonings for company occasions and given zestful garnishings for every day.

Here is a recipe for Swedish style meat loaf which is embellished with a filling of sliced pickles. Use dill pickle sticks, so that the flavor of dill as well as the sharp tang of the pickles themselves will permeate the meat.

Pickle Stuffed Meat Loaf

(Six servings)

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1 medium onion, minced
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 cup hot mashed potatoes
- 3 teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 egg
- ½ cup tomato juice
- 6 dill pickle sticks

Fry onions gently in butter until soft. Then blend all ingredients lightly except pickles. Mound half the meat mixture in a greased baking pan approximately the size of a meat loaf. Place a layer of the pickles down the center of the meat. Place the rest of the meat on top, sealing the two edges of meat with damp fingers. Re-shape the loaf to desired form. Bake at 375 degrees 1 to 1½ hours.

Beef-Bleu Cheese Sandwich Filling

Packed with adventure is the lunchbox that holds Beef-Bleu Cheese Sandwich Filling, spread between slices of favorite bread. Easy to make — it can be frozen, too — combine 1 cup of shredded, dried beef with ¼ cup crumbled Bleu cheese and ½ cup prepared sour cream.

Sour Cream Adds Spark To Molded Salad

What shall I serve my guests for a late evening supper? If you are asking yourself this question then here is a suggestion that will please you as well as your guests. The menu might consist of a cold meat and cheese tray, Pineapple Cream Salad garnished with fruit, hot rolls, butter, assorted relishes, toasted almond ice cream and milk.

The cold meat and cheese tray can be an attractive arrangement of assorted cheeses such as Swiss, Cheddar and Gouda along with meat such as ham or slices of turkey from the leftover holiday dinner. The Pineapple Cream Salad will be a special treat with it's delicate lime green color and tangy flavor provided by the dairy sour cream.

This versatile dairy food is a perfect ingredient in a molded salad for it has a creamy smooth texture and slightly tangy flavor which is distinctive.

The next time you plan to have friends over for an evening get-to-gether and end up the occasion with a late supper, give the above menu a try.

PINEAPPLE CREAM SALAD

- 2 packages lime-flavored gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 pint dairy sour cream
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple, drained
- ½ cup finely chopped blanched almonds
- Salad greens
- Mayonnaise

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water and cool slightly. Fold in sour cream, salt, pineapple and nuts. Pour into individual molds or one large mold and chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens and garnish with mayonnaise. Makes 8 servings.

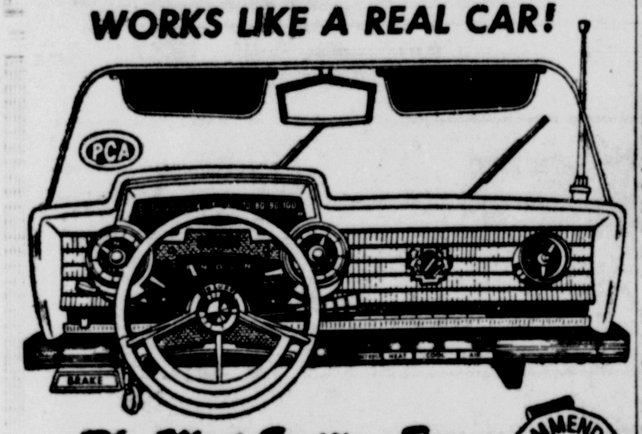

Liver Sausage-Dill Pickle Sandwich

This sandwich is a dill-y. It teams the crunch and sparkle of dill pickle, cut in lengthwise slices, and liver sausage, two generous slices — perfect fits for a buttered sandwich bun that goes to work with a man-on-th-job.

A recent Smithsonian Institution study reported 38 distinct species of Culicoides (biting midges) in Panama alone, compared to the previously known total of 16.

Baked Seafood Casserole

- 1 lb. canned or frozen crabmeat
- 1 shrimp, cooked, shelled and deveined
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- ½ cup chopped green pepper
- ¼ cup finely chopped onions
- 1½ cups finely chopped celery
- ½ teaspoon salt
- paprika
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 2 cups coarsely crushed potato chips

Heat oven to 400°. Combine crabmeat, shrimp, mayonnaise, green pepper, onion, celery, salt and Worcestershire. Pour into a buttered 2½-quart casserole. Top with crushed potato chips. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake 20 to 25 minutes, until mixture is thoroughly heated. Makes about 8 servings.

Oatmeal For Breakfast Treats

Breakfast should be a pleasant meal. Obvious though this may seem, it isn't always the case. The period between waking and the closing of the door behind the family en route to work and school can be, and often is, a time of hectic activity, scarcely allowing for more than a flimsy pretense of eating. Or at best, for allaying morning hunger pangs with a few quick gulps of coffee on the way out.

This important meal of the day deserves a better break. After the night-long fast, it takes a good meal to set one up for the day. Both youngsters and adults need nutritious foods at the start of the day, if they're to work and play at their best. U. S. Department of Agriculture studies have shown that when breakfast is skimped or skipped, efficiency and concentration are hard to maintain even when later meals of the day are adequate.

Try getting the family up a few minutes earlier, if need be. It's well worth it. Have a tempting breakfast ready, so there won't be unforeseen delays and all may enjoy the foods you serve. As for quantity, a simple guide to follow is to allow for a fourth to a third of the day's food intake for this first meal. Include a fruit juice for vitamin C needs, egg, cereal, meat or other protein food for body building, and milk as an all-round food value beverage. And make sure to serve something hot, because it's heartening.

A treat for breakfast is as welcome as in any other meal of the day, and will help make the meal more attractive. Among the all-time favorites on the morning menu are pancakes and muffins. Use oatmeal and milk for the basic ingredients and your pancakes and muffins will be both delicious and nourishing. They'll also be tempting variations of the nutritious cereal course.

Oatmeal is a traditional hot breakfast dish, an energy-giving food that also supplies significant amounts of iron.

USDA home economists recommend these tasty Oatmeal Pancakes. Use them for breakfast or for a luncheon or light supper dish. Like other pancakes, they'll go well with syrup, honey, sour cream or applesauce toppings, jam or other favorite go-withs.

- 2 cups milk (or ½ cup dry milk plus 2 cups water)
- 2 cups quick-cooking oats
- 2½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, separated
- ⅓ cup melted fat or oil

Heat milk and pour it over the oats. Allow to cool. Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt. Beat egg yolks and add to oat mixture. Add the fat or oil and stir in dry ingredients. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop the batter by spoonfuls on a hot greased griddle or heavy metal frying pan. When the surface is covered with bubbles, turn and brown on the other side. Oatmeal pancakes take longer to brown than plain pancakes.

Oatmeal Muffins are quite delicious. The fragrant aroma of hot breads a'baking is a powerful lure to the breakfast table. Make enough for second helpings. You're sure to need them. Or even for midmorning or midafternoon snacks.

- 1 cup sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoons sugar
- 1 cup quick-cooking oats
- 1 egg, beaten (or 2-½ tablespoons sifted dried egg mixture with 2-½ tablespoons water)
- 1 cup milk (¼ cup dry milk plus 1 cup water)
- ¼ cup melted fate or oil

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, sugar, and oats. Combine egg, milk, and fat.. Add to the dry ingredients all at once, stirring only enough to moisten. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full. Bake at 400° F. (hot oven) about 20 minutes. Makes about 12 medium-sized muffins.

Jobs For Tomorrow Theme Of Project

Five-Year Program To Be Launched At Annual C. Of C. Banquet Tonight

MEYERSDALE, Pa.—A five-year area program to create jobs and put area residents to work to be known as the Jobs for Tomorrow Program will be kicked off at the Meyersdale Chamber of Commerce industrial testimonial banquet in the Meyersdale Area high school cafeteria this evening.

While the annual industrial banquet, set to begin at 6:30 p. m., will pay tribute to and honor area industries and plants that provide area workers with jobs, the "Jobs for Tomorrow" program kickoff will be the highlight.

Reveal Statistics

Information regarding area industries and plants will be revealed. There will also be professional stage entertainment to follow in the high school auditorium with the outstanding Liquidaries of Pittsburgh providing entertainment.

Attorney Frank S. Lucente will be toastmaster for this affair. This will be a joint meeting of the Meyersdale Chamber of Commerce, the Garrett Chamber of Commerce, the Meyersdale Lions and Rotary Clubs, the Salisbury Lions club, the Grantsville Lions and Rotary clubs and the Rockwood Rotary club.

"Jobs For Tomorrow"

Officials of the Meyersdale Development Association revealed that this industrial banquet is an excellent time and place to launch the long-talked of and planned "Jobs for Tomorrow" program in this area.

In simple language, this is a plan under which those who are working and have income would pay $1 a month for five years—a total of $60—to establish a fund to bring industry to the community.

The area to be covered in this program would include Meyersdale, Garrett, Boynton, Salisbury, West Salisbury, Springs, Wellersburg and the rural areas surrounding these communities.

The purpose of "Jobs for Tomorrow" is threefold: to secure new industries for the Meyersdale area, including the areas mentioned; create more job opportunities and to raise funds to help acquire new industries and expand existing industries.

This objective can be achieved by voluntary contributions and through contributions by means of a payroll deduction plan: a dollar a month over a five-year period.

Specific Purposes

This money is to be used only in efforts to bring new industry to the area and help expand existing industries and for no other purposes.

In the past, the members of the Meyersdale Chamber of Commerce and the Meyersdale Development Association have been paying the bills in connection with the program to attract new industries.

Money raised under the "Jobs for Tomorrow" program will be deposited in local banks on interest Administration of the fund will be the responsibility of the directors of the Meyersdale Development Association.

The money so raised will not leave the community.

Benefit To Area

The "Jobs for Tomorrow" program will benefit the whole area it covers, since new industries create more jobs, maintain real estate values and stabilize community economy. Furthermore, new jobs will help to keep young people from the area in jobs at home.

Officers of the Development Association are: Robert G. Clapper, President; A. G. Weaver, vice president; D. Jay Meyers, secretary, and S. R. Philson, treasurer.

Development association directors are: Henry J. Beamer, William D. Gnagey, Dale J. Clapper, John H. Cover, Ernest L. Pritt, Harry F. Habel and Thomas E. Shipley.

For years, suggestions have been made that a long-range program of community development be undertaken to secure new industries, expand present industries and create more jobs. This, then, is the culmination of these suggestions, the beginning of a new program.

Payroll Deduction

Those who are employed should obtain and sign a "Jobs for Tomorrow" monthly payroll plan card and present it to their employer.

Those who are self-employed, retired and those who work out-of-town may make payments to the treasurer at the Citizens National Bank, Meyersdale. Payments may be made monthly, quarterly or annually.

Chairman Of Savings Association Says Firm In 'Sound And Solvent' Condition

WASHINGTON (AP)—An officer of the Family Savings and Home Loan Association Inc. says a scheduled Nov. 20 hearing will show that the company and its affiliates were "sound, solvent and have been operating at a profit."

William A. Gresham, chairman of the board, in a statement to the press, said the hearing also will show that "the request for a receivership was arbitrary, precipitous, and not in the general public interest and particularly not in the interest of the shareholding members."

Circuit Court Judges James H. Pugh had decreed receivership for the firm Friday after Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan testified the company made illegal loans worth nearly $2 million to firms headed by its own officers.

The attorney general also said the association's books showed seven unsecured loans worth more than $3 million for which evidence of interest payments could not be found.

Gresham was listed as an offical of both Family and the Gregory Investment Co. Finan said Gregory borrowed $1,577,000 from Family.

Gresham, in his statement, said, "For sometime Family . . . and its affiliated companies have been in the process of reorganization.

"Because of the enactment of needed regulatory legislation, which the association supported, plans for this reorganization were accelerated. Progress of the reorganization was reported to the free shareholding members.

"In the course of this reorganization, a preliminary examination by State authorities was made, which was incomplete, and the statement drawn by these authorities is inaccurate and misleading.

"The request for the receivership was made without notice or opportunity to answer the allegation of the director of the department of assessment and taxation," Gresham said.

Guglielmi Named No. 1 Quarterback For St. Louis Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ralph Guglielmi, a Washington Redskins castoff, has displaced Sam Etcheverry, the toast of Canadian pro football fans for nine years, as the No. 1 quarterback of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Coach Frank (Pop) Ivy made it official Tuesday, but he added the Cardinals have not given up on Etcheverry and he could regain the job at any time.

"The two quarterbacks are on a par practically," Ivy said, "but we can't keep yo-yoing our quarterbacks in and out because then they'll start pressing in order to look good and we would have them trying for the long 'bomb' on every pass.

"So we will stay with Ralph as long as he goes well.

"If he has a real bad time out there then it becomes a different situation and Etcheverry will be used without any qualms on our part."

West Side Captures Elementary Touch Football League Crown

Defeats Columbia Street, 19 To 7, In Playoff Tilt

Mike Shepherd scored two touchdowns to lead West Side to a 19-7 triumph over Columbia Street yesterday, giving the West Siders the Elementary School Touch Football League Class A crown in a playoff game at Stitcher Field.

The two teams had tied for first place with 5-1 records at the completion of the regular season necessitating the playoff tilt. West Side captured the regular season game from Columbia Street, 13-12, and made it two in a row over the runners-up with yesterday's victory.

Columbia Street's Class B team won the title in that division.

West Side broke a scoreless deadlock in the third period when Shepherd gathered in a Ralph Leasure pass and went 50 yards to tally the first touchdown. Later in the period Shepherd scored again on a 50-yard run.

Trailing 12-0 Columbia bounced back to register a touchdown when Steve Dean took a 40-yard scoring pass from Mervin Uhl. The losers added the extra point on a pass from Uhl to Lee Bennett.

West Side added the clinching touchdown in the fourth quarter when Leasure raced 30 yards for the score. He then passed to Shepherd for the extra point to conclude the scoring. The results:

West Side	0	0	12	7	—19
Columbia Street	0	0	7	0	— 7

Touchdowns: West Side—Shepherd 2 (50, pass from Leasure; 50, run); Leasure (30, run). Columbia Street—Dean (40, pass from Uhl).

Jim Aiken Dies At Sports Dinner

MEDFORD, Ore. (UPI)—Gravel-voiced Jim Aiken, who helped Norman Van Brocklin become one of the greatest forward passers football has seen, died last night after addressing a sports dinner here.

Aiken, 60, former football coach at the Universities of Oregon, Nevada and Akron, collapsed at the head table after his talk. He had suffered from a heart ailment for some time.

Connors Near Offense Mark For Salem

Gained 968 Yards In W.Va. Conference

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — In all probability, Salem College whiz Billy Connors will exceed the 1,000-yard mark in both total offense and passing this week—and that's something only a handful of West Virginia Conference players have done in the past.

Connors apparently has made a runaway of both statistical departments. Figures released Wednesday showed he has accounted for 968 yards for the league-leading Tigers. Of this, 916 has been by passing.

Salem plays West Virginia State Friday—and the Yellow Jackets apparently are weaker than any team the Tigers have faced.

Connors has completed a fancy 64.5 per cent of his passes—49 for 76 — and eight have gone for touchdowns. Far behind in second place in passing with 577 yards passing is Chuck Giger, Potomac.

Willie Wood of Wesleyan is second in total offense with 763 yards. Of this, 720 has been on the ground and he apparently has this title pretty well sewed up. Salem's Don Gilpin is second with 508 yards. Wood also has regained the scoring lead from teammate Jim Hawkins, 55 to 51.

Tom Munsey, Concord, ousted Salem's Dave Wiegand from the pass-catching lead 25 to 23. Other leaders remained the same—Don Yontz, Concord, in punting; Joe Pugh, Potomac, in punt returns; crippled Gene Beasley, Fairmont, in kickoff returns, and Tom Pannett, West Liberty, in pass interceptions.

Richie Lucas To Enter Army Today

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Former Penn State All-America quarterback Richie Lucas will trade Buffalo blue for Army green Thursday. And Lucas revealed a parting wish Wednesday to return to the American Football League team next season in the role of defensive halfback.

Starting Thursday, Lucas will play an Army private for at least the next year at Ft. Meade, Md.

Double Anniversary For Basketball

By SYLVIA ZEIGER
Central Press Association Correspondent

The sport of basketball, played in more than 75 countries, with more than 2,000,000 games annually played in the U. S., and reported to have more spectators than football and baseball combined, celebrates its 70th birthday and the 100th birthday of its founder, James Naismith, born November 6, 1861.

Naismith, born in Almonte, Canada, grew up in a farming and lumber camp and developed an early interest in physical fitness. Although he prepared for several careers, including the ministry and medicine, he decided as his life work to teach "clean living" through sports.

While director of physical education at YMCA college at Springfield, Mass., it was suggested that Naismith devise an indoor game to fill the gap between the football and baseball seasons. Naismith decided the new game must have a ball tossed at a goal that would be difficult to guard.

He used peach baskets because the janitor couldn't find boxes, and had them nailed to the gymnasium railing which was 10 feet from the floor. Although the sport now boasts of unusually tall players, (tallest player in the American Basketball League is over 7 feet), the basket continues to remain at the traditional 10 feet above the floor. Naismith drew up 13 rules for the original game. These basic rules plus more than 200 others are in use today.

Naismith had classes, regardless of size, divided into two teams. Chaos resulted. In one game, more than 100 players participated causing a near-collapse of the rickety building they were in. Gradually the size of the team was reduced to the present five members.

Trial and error perfected the game. At first a ladder was used to retrieve the ball after every basket. Later a long stick pushed the ball through a small hole in the bottom of the basket, then a chain-pull was devised to drop the ball. Finally, the open net was evolved.

All was not smooth sailing for Naismith in promoting his game. Charges that the game produced excessive fatigue were discounted by Naismith whose medical knowledge came in handy.

Missionaries and teachers introduced the game in China and India in 1894, France in 1895, Japan in 1900 and Iran in 1901. During World War I the game was played throughout Europe. In 1936 basketball became an Olympic sport.

The success of the Harlem Globetrotters, a Negro basketball team, world-famous for its skill and amusing antics, proves that the game is profitable and good entertainment. They have played in every major city on earth in over 72 countries, over 7,000 games. Their gate receipts for the year total more than a million dollars.

Basketball has provided much-needed physical recreation for the handicapped. In 1946 the game was adapted for paraplegics and other wheelchair patients. It soon spread to other countries and in 1955 became an entry in the Paralympics (Olympics for the Paralyzed.)

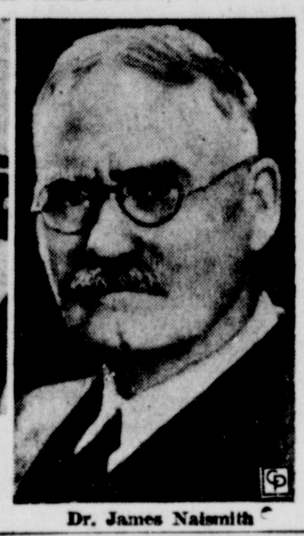

Naismith, vigorous, with good posture and a well-muscled body, was the best example of what he preached—the value of sports in promoting physical fitness. He married one of the first girl basketball players; spent his last 40 years as physical education director at the University of Kansas. He died in 1939, aged 70.

Collins Seeks Pass Record

Terp End Needs Nine Yards For New Mark

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Maryland's Gary Collins, who broke one Atlantic Coast Conference pass-receiving record last weekend, will erase another Saturday if he can catch at least nine yards worth of passes against Penn State at College Park.

The Terps' senior end star, who caught three for 50 yards and a touchdown against South Carolina last weekend, in the process snapped the ACC record for most touchdown passes caught in a three-year career. It gave him 10, beating the old mark of nine set by Virginia's Sonny Randle in 1958 and equaled by Collins earlier this season.

For his 2½ seasons on the Terp varsity, Collins pass receptions have accounted for 979 yards in gains. The ACC career record for pass-reception yardage, also held by Randle, is 987 yards.

Collins also is within striking distance of the ACC career record for most passes caught. Collins, with four games left, has caught 58. The record, likewise held by Randle, is 68.

Just 21 more yards in receptions will also make Collins the first "1,000-yard" pass-catcher in ACC history.

N.C. State's Johnny Morris and Collins are currently tied for first place in '61 pass receiving in the conference, according to latest ACC Service Bureau figures. Each has 14, though Collins has accounted for 225 yards to Morris' 216.

Clemson's Lon Armstrong (13 for 13 and 27 in a row) continues to top extra point kicking, though close behind is John Hannigan of Maryland with 11 for 11. The ACC has now made 63 of 66 for the season.

In pass interceptions, Tom Brown of Maryland still leads with five, trailed by Stan Fischer of Virginia and Jim Davidson of Maryland with four each.

Mountaineer Frosh To Play Penn State

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. — Freshman football teams from Penn State and West Virginia will wind up their schedules Saturday in a game beginning at 11 a.m. EST on Mountaineer Field. Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Both universities claim fine freshman squads and the series history heralds another close contest.

Penn State rallied to edge Pitt 15-14 Saturday at University Park while West Virginia defeated Ohio U, 33-20 at Clarksburg. Coach Ed Shockey calls the Bobkittens the best opponent his freshmen have faced this season. The Lion Cubs also lost to the Navy Plebes, 26-0, at Annapolis. West Virginia lost 29-14 to the Pitt Cubs while outplaying them and also defeated Virginia Tech 13-6 and Fairmont 19-7.

Since resuming the freshman series in 1958, Penn State won 21-6 and 21-20 at home and West Virginia won 14-6 at Morgantown in 1959. The all-time record shows Penn State leading, three victories to two.

Referee Fox Answers Criticism By Coach

Feels Integrity Of Officials Is Attacked By Frank

John Fox, assistant football coach at Potomac State College and a registered gridiron official, last night took exception to statements made by Coach John Frank of the Fort Hill High School Jayvees team concerning the officiating in a game between Fort Hill and Keyser on Monday.

Frank was critical of the call on an extra point play in which Fort Hill failed to score. He stated that the officials signaled the point was good, then later said it was not good when Keyser went ahead to win, 13-12.

Fox, in his statement last night, said:

"In reply to the statement by John Frank, coach of the Fort Hill JVs team concerning 'bad officiating' at their Keyser game:

"First of all, I do not think the issue here is 'bad officiating,' but rather that the officials 'lied' and 'cheated' Fort Hill's team. Statements in the paper like 'the Fort Hill JV's played almost a full three quarters of the game with 13 points to their credit, but with 40 seconds remaining in the game an official notified our bench that the score was 13-12 in favor of Keyser' are uncalled for. This is not a statement concerning the officiating, but rather one concerning an official's character. Another statement was made to me by Coach Frank after the game. He said, 'if Keyser had scored their last extra point he supposed THEN the score would have been 14-13 in favor of Keyser.' The implication is clear in both of these statements that Coach Frank feels that the officials were dishonest.

"I think we could find a character reference somewhere, but I know that there are many people in the area who will gladly back up any reference concerning the honesty of Gary Keedy and Ron Kuykendall. Both gentlemen won the Kelley award at Keyser High School which is one of the school's highest honors, and both are studying for the ministry.

"I feel terrible about the whole incident, and frankly I do not know how it could have happened. There was no question in the minds of the officials concerning the score, and many spectators after the game confirmed the 13-12 score. As a registered official I was in charge of the game, and it is unfair to implicate Gary Keedy and Ron Kuykendall.

"I sincerely hope that the alumni and students of Fort Hill are not too upset over the loss. If any of the Fort Hill players develop any psychological complexes, this two is regrettable. Perhaps even more important, however, I wish there was some way to guarantee that men like Gary Keedy and Ron Kuykendall will remain in officiating. This would help insure that sports programs in the future will be carried out so that maximum benefits would be derived by all."

Prenupcial Enters International

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Prenupcial, winner of the Simon Bolivar race in Caracas Saturday, will observe his fifth birthday by running in the $100,000 Washington D.C. International on Nov. 11.

Prenupcial was born in Argentina but will represent Venezuela in the 10th running of the International.

His owner, Enrique Soto Rivera, accepted the International invitation on the basis of Prenupcial's Simon Bolivar victory by a neck over Klick.

Prenupcial ran the mile and quarter in 2:05¼. The International is a quarter of a mile longer on the grass.

Prenupcial's entry brought the International field to eight representing six nations.

The others are Kelso and T. V. Lark of the United States, Zabeg and Erpich of Russia, Misti of France, Wonderboy of Denmark, and Sail Cheoil of Ireland.

Good Defense Is Aid To Top College Teams

Michigan State Has Yielded Least Points

NEW YORK (UPI)—Defense isn't the most glamorous aspect of football but it's indispensable to a winner.

Official statistics released Wednesday by the service bureau of the NCAA show that three of the major football powers still unbeaten lead the nation in a defensive department.

Alabama has been the stingiest in overall yardage, Utah State has thrown up the best defense against a running attack and Michigan State has yielded the least points.

Defense also should prove the decisive factor in one of the country's leading games this Saturday when Michigan State opposes Big 10 rival Minnesota, which is third behind Alabama and Utah State in total defense.

The Alabama defensive units yielded just 735 yards in their first six games for a per game average of 122.5. However, the Crimson Tide lost their leadership in rushing defense to Utah State, which stopped Idaho cold with minus 23 yards in their encounter last week.

This performance by Utah State was the third best in college history and reduced its per game average of opponents' ground yardage to 43.4 yards.

Alabama dropped to second place in rushing defense with an average of 45 yards allowed per game and Mississippi (69.3) is third.

Pennsylvania has yielded a mere 41.2 passing yards in five games to set the national pace in this department although Minnesota is the stingiest pass defender percentage-wise, permitting its opponents to complete just 30.2 per cent of their aerials.

Iowa State (49.3) is second behind Pennsylania and Minnesota and Yale are tied for third at 49.4 yards.

Michigan State opponents have scored just 10 points in five games to establish the No. 1 nationally-ranked Spartans as the toughest all-around defensive outfit in the country.

Middies Point For Irish Tilt

Closed Circuit TV To Relay Contest

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Navy appears ready for an all-out effort Saturday against Notre Dame in a football game that shapes up as the most important of the season to the midshipmen except for Army.

"Our kids want to win and they're going to give it everything they've got," coach Wayne Hardin said Wednesday. "We don't think they're unbeatable — Northwestern proved that — and we don't look for them to run us off the field."

The Middies will be playing in college football's oldest intersectimnal rivalry at South Bend Saturday, and the fever-high pitch of the brigade of midshipmen attests to its importance.

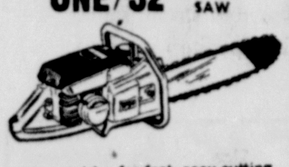

The 3,900-man brigade has arranged to watch the game over closed-circuit television in the Naval Academy field house and pipe its cheers over a leased telephone line and loudspeakers on the sidelines of the Navy team. A big send-off for the team is planned Friday.

It will be the 35th straight year the teams have met.

Waivers Asked On Carl Taseff

Colts To Release 10-Year Veteran

BALTIMORE (AP)—Defensive halfback Carl Taseff, a veteran of 10 years in the National Football League, was placed on waivers Wednesday by the Baltimore Colts.

The 33-year-old Taseff, a graduate of John Carroll University, was the 22nd draft choice of the Cleveland Browns in 1951. He played one year with the Browns, spent one year in the army, then was traded to Baltimore in 1953.

Since 1954, when he averaged 5.6 yards on 42 rushing plays, Taseff has carried the ball only five times on offense.

An elusive runner, who made good use of his blocks, Taseff returned 107 punts for 787 yards and 42 kickoffs for 965 yards during eight previous seasons with the Colts.

On defense, going into the 1961 season, Taseff had returned 17 intercepted passes for 183 yards. He was considered one of the better blockers and tacklers on the squad.

Taseff's departure reduces the Colt roster to 35 players, one under the limit. Baltimore is expected to add another player in time for next Sunday's game against Green Bay, the Western Conference leader.

With six defensive halfbacks still on the roster, the Colts likely will add an offensive halfback. Tom Matte, the club's No. 1 draft choice this year, has been working out recently after recovering from a cracked vertebra in the second game of the season.

Top Grid Teams To Face Tough Foes This Week

November Rated Month Of Upsets, Some May Lose

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — November is the "month of upsets" in college football but there's no telling where the bad news will strike Saturday.

Michigan State, Mississippi and Ohio State, rated in the nation's top five, all have toughies they well could lose. But the guess here is they'll all survive along with third-ranked Texas and fourth-ranked Alabama in a solid stand by the "big five" of the year so far.

That makes it Michigan State over Minnesota, Mississippi over Louisiana State, Texas over Southern Methodist, Alabama over Mississippi State and Ohio State over Iowa.

Around the nation:

EAST

Syracuse 20, Pittsburgh 14—Sarette is back to help Ernie Davis.

Army 14, Detroit 7—With or without Army's Eckert.

Iowa State 20, Boston College 7—Hoppmann is the key man.

Also: Boston U. over Massachusetts, Princeton over Brown, Buffalo over Bucknell, Colgate over Lehigh, Columbia over Cornell, Dartmouth over Yale, Holy Cross over Dayton, Delaware over Temple, Harvard over Pennsylvania, Rutgers over Lafayette, Villanova over Montana State.

MIDWEST

Michigan State 28, Minnesota 20—In a wild second half.

Ohio State 24, Iowa 21—Should be a dandy.

Missouri 10, Colorado 7—Risky; Colorado tough at home.

Notre Dame 17, Navy 10—Field goals may decide it.

Also: Michigan over Duke, Purdue over Illinois, Northwestern over Indiana, Kansas over Nebraska, Oklahoma over Kansas State, Miami, Ohio, over Toledo, Oklahoma State over Wichita, Xavier over Louisville.

SOUTH

Mississippi 14, Louisiana State 10—Biggest test for touted Rebels.

Alabama 21, Mississippi State 7—Trammell and Co. again.

Penn State 14, Maryland 7—Nittany Lions back on the beam.

Also: Auburn over Wake Forest, Clemson over Tulane, Georgia Tech over Florida, Miami over Georgia, Kentucky over Florida State, Tennessee over North Carolina, South Carolina over Virginia, North Carolina State over Mississippi Southern, West Virginia over George Washington, Memphis State over Furman, William and Mary over Davidson, VMI over The Citadel, Virginia Tech over Richmond.

SOUTHWEST

Texas 28, Southern Methodist 7—Longhorns have the zip.

Arkansas 20, Texas A. & M. 14—Edge to home team.

Texas Christian 14, Baylor 7—Anything goes.

Also: Rice over Texas Tech, Texas Western over Hardin Simmons, North Texas State over Drake, Cincinnati over Tulsa, Wyoming over Arizona.

FAR WEST

UCLA 20, California 14—Could be trouble here.

Southern California 14, Washington 7—Oddsmakers like Washington, though.

Oregon 14, Stanford 13—Looks about that close.

Also: Oregon State over Washington State, Arizona State over San Jose State, Idaho over Pacific. Rockie: Utah State over Brigham Young, Air Force over Colorado State, Utah over New Mexico.

Angels Give Lemon Promotional Job

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Lemon, the former Cleveland pitching star who was seven times a 20-game winner in the majors, was signed to a promotional job Wednesday by the Los Angeles Angels.

Lemon, 41, will work in ticket sales and public relations. During spring training he will help coach the Angels' farm club pitchers.

W. Va. Streams Reported Good For Fishermen

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Most West Virginia fishing streams were reported Thursday to be in good condition for week end fishing. Major exceptions were in the central and north-central sections of the state.

The State Department of Natural Resources said streams were clear and normal in depth in the Eastern Panhandle, southeastern West Virginia and the Huntington area.

The Ohio River, Middle Island Creek and Sutton Reservoir also were normal and clear while Fishing Creek and Little Kanawha River in Gilmer and Calhoun Counties were normal and milky.

Streams high and muddy or milky included those in the Elkins area, Elk River, and Cranberry River in central West Virginia. Williams River was high and clear.

The department said little rain was expected before the week end and muddy conditions in some mountain areas might be alleviated by Saturday.

Eagles Defy Pro Theory To Compile Win Record

Gain Most Yards On Aerial Game To Lead Division

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles are defying an old pro football theory by winning games with a lopsided offense.

It's been an adage in the National Football League that "a club can't pass unless it can run." The object is to strike an effective balance between passing and running.

And yet the Eagles have compiled their 6-1 record with an attack that has gained 68.7 per cent of its yardage through the air, according to official statistics released Wednesday by NFL headquarters.

The only team in the league that has a more lopsided offense than Philadelphia is the winless Washington Redskins, who have gained 71.8 percent of their yardage through the air.

Last Sunday against the Redskins, Philadelphia gained 436 yards by passing and had a net rushing deficit of 12 yards.

As an example of a more balanced offense, the Green Bay Packers, who lead the Western Division, have gained 51.2 percent of their yardage by passing and 48.8 percent by rushing.

Broken down into yardage, the Eagles have gained 1,644 by passing and only 749 by rushing, despite the fact that they have excellent ball carriers in Billy Barnes, Clarence Peaks and Ted Dean.

Green Bay has gone through the air for 1,344 yards and over land for 1,279.

The Packers continue to lead in most of the important offense departments and also in a few defensive categories. They have scored the most points (222), gained the most yardage, (2,623), the most rushing yardage (1,279) and have the best pass completion percentage (60.5).

Green Bay also has yielded the fewest points (68) and intercepted the most passes (20).

In other defensive categories, the San Francisco Forty-Niners have held opponents to the lowest total yardage (1,578) and the lowest passing yardage (856).

Oddly, the Redskins have given up the least rushing yardage (528)—while surrendering 2,188 through the air—and the New York Giants have a league-leading pass defense completion percentage of 44.6.

There were no changes among the leaders in the five major individual departments.

Sonny Jurgensen, who directs the Eagles' attack, was tops in passing with 111 completions in 191 attempts for 1,724 yards and 14 touchdowns. Bart Starr of the Packers, runnerup in passing, is first in completion percentage with an even 62.0.

Jim Taylor of Green Bay led in rushing with 618 yards in 111 carries, although Jimmy Brown of Cleveland was only eight yards behind him.

Jim Phillips of the Los Angeles Rams retained first place in pass receiving with 38 catches for 660 yards; Paul Hornung of the Packers led the scorers with 102 points, and Yale Lary of the Detroit Lions was tops in punting with an average of 47.9 yards in 30 kicks.

Market Closes Irregular As Activity Slows Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks closed narrowly in the averages Wednesday, with miscellaneous issues outperforming the blue chips.

Trading contracted to 3,210,000 shares against 3,350,000 in the prior session. However, the market was the broadest in 13 sessions with 1,296 issues traded. Of these 594 advanced, 48 to new 1961 highs, and 474 declined, 21 to new lows.

Reflecting sharp gains in scattered issues the comprehensive Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.11 to a new record high of 68.73.

Dow-Jones 30 industrials lost 0.08 with Union Carbide, Johns-Manville, and Woolworth off more than a point, Procter & Gamble up 1¼ and DuPont ahead 1¾.

Armco picked up 1⅜ among the steels but the rest of the group was narrow. Motors charted a similar pattern although Chrysler rose ¾ trading ex-dividend on improved October sales and hopes for a peaceful labor settlement. Ford gained only ⅛ although it nearly tripled its earnings in the third quarter.

Electronics moved widely. Fairchild Camera lost 3¾, IBM 2½, and Zenith 4¾ while Litton bounded forward 6 points.

In the related aircrafts, most issues were narrow, but Republic Aviation rose 1¾ more in further response to quadrupled nine months earnings and plans for a stock split.

Home Building, Improvements At Busy Pace

County Issues 46 Permits In October

October—the last month before Allegany County's new interim zoning ordinance became effective—proved to be a good one for building permit activity in the office of James G. Stevenson, clerk to the Board of County Commissioners, as 46 permits were issued for work estimated by the builders to cost a total of $377,175.

Last month was the final one in which Mr. Stevenson was responsible for building permits for the unincorporated areas of the county. Under terms of the new zoning ordinance the responsibility now rests with C. Lee Renaud, the county's new planning director. His office is in the Court House basement.

Although the number of October building permits was slightly below the 50 issued in October 1960, the total estimated cost was well ahead of a year ago when the total was only $296,320.

Third Biggest Month

Only two months so far this year have had higher total estimated cost of construction than October. July was the leader with $448,725 and May was next with $401,087.

October apparently was the last in which there will be no charge for building permits. The County Planning and Zoning Commission submitted to the county commissioners Tuesday recommended building permit fees. They include $2 for a zoning certificate application, $25 for a rezoning application and $15 for an appeal to the Board of Appeals. The county commissioners referred the matter to Leslie J. Clark, county attorney, for his opinion.

After 10 months of 1961, some 427 building permits have been issued by Mr. Stevenson and his assistants for building in the unincorporated areas of the county. That is 64 more than the 363 issued in the corresponding period a year ago. The total estimated cost of construction, however, is $2,720,012, which is $536,788 less than the $3,256,800 total for the first 10 months of 1960.

The big reason for the difference is the fact that the August 1960 total of $1,085,490 included a $950,000 LaVale Plaza Shopping Center, which became a reality this August. There has been no comparable construction authorized in 1961.

30 New Dwellings

Of the 46 permits issued in October, 30 were for new dwellings and seven others for additions to existing dwellings. The rest included five new garages, a carport, addition to a barn, garage and workshop and a church.

The October permits authorized work in 17 different election districts of the county. The leader was District 29, LaVale, as usual, with nine, followed closely by District 6, West Side suburban, and 7, Cresaptown-Rawlings, each with seven. Two other districts, 2 at Oldtown, and 16, at North Branch, had three permits each.

Five other districts had two permits each in October. Included were Districts 3, Flintstone; 5, North End suburban; 20 Ellerslie-Corriganville; 21, East Side suburban, and 31, McCoole. Single permits were issued last month for jobs in Districts 22, 25, 26 and 30.

Ordinance Sets Up Rules For Mobile Home Courts

The ordinance adopted by the Mayor and Council Monday to set up rules and regulations for the location and operation of mobile home or trailer court areas is a comprehensive document.

As in Ordinance No. 2259, which was repealed and re-enacted with amendments in the new code, it prohibits the location of mobile home or trailer courts except in areas designated by the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission.

It requires any person requesting permission to locate such a facility to submit plans to the Planning Commission, which must ask the city engineer to investigate and report to the commission.

It allows the city engineer to issue an occupancy permit for mobile homes or trailers in areas designated by the commission.

It also sets up procedures under which the city engineer may revoke the permit.

Applicants turned down by the Planning Commission are given the right of a hearing before the Mayor and Council.

Under location rules, the ordinance allows such court areas only in business districts and requires that they be at least 200 feet away from any residence, unless separated by a material or artificial barrier, or unless a majority of property owners within 200 feet agree to the establishment of the mobile home or trailer court area.

The ordinance requires that a minimum of 3,000 square feet of space be provided for each mobile home space, which must be clearly marked.

A paved patio of at least 180 square feet must be provided for each space and provision must be made for vehicle parking.

All roadways and walks within the area must be surfaced and adequately lighted, and a recreation area provided unless a public park or recreation area is nearby.

All electrical distribution, plumbing, telephone service or antenna system serving each trailer must be underground.

All mobile home or trailers must have an ornamental skirt around the bottom.

Individual water and sewage service connections must be provided for each space and the minimum water and sewage service fee is to be charged for each space.

At least one approved fire extinguisher must be kept in each mobile home or trailer.

Violations of the ordinance are subject to fines of $10 to $100 for each day of non-compliance.

Redevelopment Loans To Aid West Virginia

West Virginia Gov. W .W. Barron yesterday submitted to the Area Redevelopment Administration vocational training proposals from 13 West Virginia counties, including Grant County, which would cost a total of $831,550.

The Grant County amount is $12,600. A proposed plan for Mineral County which would cost $16,040 is to be submitted later with plans of 12 other counties.

Gov. Barron said that within the next 10 days, 14 additional training plans totaling $638,750 would be forwarded to the ARA. The combined cost, he said, would be $1.5 million.

Yesterday federal officials signed the papers for the first loans to West Virginia under the Area Development Program.

The action was hailed as the start of a new industrial development era for the state.

Gov. Barron, other West Virginia officials and members of the state's Congressional delegation attended the ceremony in Washington at which papers were signed for two loans totaling $860,000 for a new furniture parts plant in Mingo County.

The governor said it has been estimated that 5,000 jobless West Virginians would receive training in new skills under the proposals submitted yesterday and those which will be forthcoming in the next two weeks.

He pointed out that "these programs are a tremendous step forward for West Virginia. They will enable us to have trained personnel for any industries that might want to locate in our state."

Church Plans Special Series

A series of evangelistic services will be held at Cresaptown Methodist Church beginning Sunday at 7:30 p. m. and continuing each evening through November 12.

Rev. William M. Balderson, pastor, will conduct the services. Special music will be furnished nightly by the three choirs of the church, the adult choir conducted by Mrs. Martin Johnson, senior high choir, directed by Mrs. William Balderson and the junior high choir directed by Mrs. Shirl Higgs.

Congregational singing will be under the direction of Martin C. Johnson and James Glover.

A special night is planned Wednesday for the youth of the church. Other groups will also be recognized at other services. The public is invited to attend.

Enelow Shoe Store Opens Here Today

Building Features Modern Design

The Enelow Shoe Store, corner of Baltimore and North Centre streets, will open this morning at 9 o'clock. The grand opening of downtown Cumberland's newest store, will continue tomorrow and Saturday until 9 p. m. daily.

Of striking appearance, the entire store was designed by Michael R. Enelow, executive vice president, and son of the founder of the business, William Enelow, Greensburg, Pa.

The exterior of the building is covered by steel panels on the two upper floors and by redwood panels on the main floor. The steel panels are in three tones of color. The Centre Street side of the store has shadow boxes in the paneling where shoes are displayed.

A feature of the new business is the redwood canopy in gabled effect on the front of the store. Heat ray lights are installed in the canopy and they will bathe the area at the front of the store in warm air and also prevent snow or ice from accumulating on the sidewalk.

Another feature of the store is a separate entrance on the Centre Street side for male customers. The main entrance in the front has double glass doors.

The interior has acoustical tile ceiling with large recessed fluorescent lights. There are several starlight chandeliers in gold color. Lighting the section where handbags are sold are several handset mosaic tile lights of unusual design.

There are three departments in the store which has 1,600 square feet of floor space. Children will enjoy a space platform in the rear part of the store where they will sit in simulated rocket chairs with seat belts while being fitted.

The men's department will carry Bostonian, Mansfield, City Club and Wesboro shoes in a wide range of sizes and widths. The women's department will have Vitality, Accent, Leonardo and CiRanno shoes in varied sizes and widths. The children's shoes will be Weather Bird in all sizes. Teen age shoes carried are Tiros and Torrentino.

The store will be managed by Lou Ritter, of Youngstown, Ohio. He and his wife and two chil-

Beans Cove Sawmill Burns Down

A sawmill on Beans Cove Road was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon.

Baltimore Pike Volunteer Fire Company was called to the mill owned by Harry Logue at 3 p. m. Thirteen volunteers took the company's two trucks to the fire.

They pumped water from a pond, and later from the tanks of a Flintstone Volunteer Fire Company truck which went to their aid.

The firemen spent about three hours fighting the blaze, but were unable to save the mill.

On Tuesday at 11:52 p. m. the Baltimore Pike company was called to fight a forest fire on a hill between Route 40 and Old Hancock Road behind the Habeeb greenhouse. Seventeen members of the company took both trucks to the scene, where they had the help of two forest wardens. The forestry workers remained after firemen had left, to keep a check on the forest.

Inspectors Find Flood Project In Top Shape

The Cumberland-Ridgeley flood protection was reported in top shape yesterday following a two-day inspection made by representatives of the Corps of Army Engineers.

The inspection was made by Worth D. Phillips, chief of the Design section, and Albert H. Bright Jr., of the Construction division of the Civil Construction branch of the Corps of Engineers.

Assisting in the inspection were Roy F. Maphis, maintenance foreman, and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, who serves as supervisor of the $18,100,000 project.

During a post-inspection conference at City Hall yesterday, Mr. Phillips said the city is doing an excellent job of maintenance and that he was pleased with the condition of the project.

Mr. Phillips advised Mr. Nuzum that Mr. Bright will be in charge of future annual inspections.

He added that Mr. Maphis and his crew have been doing an excellent job of maintaining the project which was turned over to the city on May 9, 1959.

Tawes Dinner Committee Changes Name

Now Called Demo 'Campaign' Unit

BALTIMORE (AP) — The name was changed, but the game looked the same Wednesday in a Democratic switch of campaign hats.

The controversial Tawes Dinner Committee will be known henceforth as the Democratic Primary Campaign Committee.

Disappearance of the name of Gov. Tawes is not to be jumped at as meaning he will not seek re-election, said Harry W. Rodgers III.

Rodgers was treasurer of the committee that promoted a dinner for Tawes last month. It raised more than $200,000 for what was known as the Tawes ticket in next May's Democratic primary.

"I am the only officer of the new committee," Rodgers said, "but you might say the principals of the committee are Tawes, Brewster, Finan and Goldstein."

Thinks Tawes Will Run

Rep. Daniel B. Brewster is to run for the U.S. Senate nomination, Thomas B. Finan for attorney general and Louis L. Goldstein for comptroller if Tawes heads a ticket.

Rodgers said he can't say for certain that Tawes will be a candidate, "but I feel confident that he is going in again."

He declined to predict what the new committee will do if Tawes does retire.

In addition to a new name, the committee acquired a director of public relations and a hotel room for headquarters.

The director, Ejner J. Johnson, has been doing publicity for the Democratic State Central Committee. The new committee room is next door to state headquarters.

Johnson has been writing statements the past few months for Tawes to issue and also praising his administration in releases from state party headquarters.

Expected Criticism

"I think we might have been subject to a certain amount of criticism if Johnson continued to work for the State Central Committee," Rodgers said. "This way he can work for one ticket and the State Central Committee can stay non-partisan."

The state headquarters receives contributions from all party workers and theoretically is supposed to avoid taking sides in primary contests.

David Hume, one of the announced candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor, in particular has raised questions about the use of the money raised at the Tawes dinner.

Charges Against Man Dismissed

Charges have been dismissed against Hermas O. Garlitz, Cresaptown, who was given a hearing Tuesday in Trial Magistrate Court in a case involving unemployment benefits.

Garlitz was charged with making false statements to obtain $910 in unemployment benefits, but Magistrate Paul W. Barnett dismissed the case.

Magistrate Barnett heard testimony in the case Tuesday afternoon, but withheld a verdict in the case until yesterday.

Thomas N. Berry, local attorney, represented Garlitz, and Donald W. Mason, deputy state's attorney, presented the state's case.

Dance Is Planned At Bowling Green

The Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company will hold a dance Saturday night in the fire hall.

Dancing will be from 9:30 p.m. to midnight, with music by "Mr. and Mrs. Rhythm." Douglas Golliday is in charge of the ticket sale.

JACK J. JENKINS

B'nai B'rith Installation Slated Sunday

Officers of Western Maryland Lodge B'nai B'rith will be installed Sunday during a dinner scheduled at 6:30 p. m. in the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Jack J. Jenkins, president-elect of District Five, Grand Lodge, B'nai B'rith, will be guest speaker and installing officer.

Toastmaster will be Leonard Schwab, according to William B. Schindler, president of the Western Maryland Lodge.

The guest speaker, who is general manager of Kinsman Optical Company, received his AA degree from Crane Junior College and the LL.B. degree from Chicago Law School.

He is past president of Maurice D. Rosenberg Lodge, Alexandria, Va., and Virginia State Association of B'nai B'rith lodges.

Marriage Licenses Drop Below 200 For October

Issuance of marriage licenses in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, last month fell below the level of 200-per-month for the first time since April.

Mrs. Phyllis Scarlett, marriage license clerk at the Court House, reported that only 196 licenses were issued during October.

That total was nine fewer than the 205 issued in October 1960 and left the 10-month total eight below the level of a year ago. After 10 months of 1960 there were 2,003 marriage licenses compared with 1,995 so far this year.

The monthly totals, with 1960 figures listed first in each case:

January—151 and 150; February—149 and 141; March—159 and 158; April—175 and 168; May—197 and 200; June—268 and 273; July—232 and 209; August—250 and 271; September—217 and 229; October—205 and 196.

Hour's Bonus For Emergency Work Slated

Job Classification Studied By Council

City workers who are called out at night for emergncy duty will receive pay for an extra hour as a bonus under an informal agreement worked out last night by the Mayor and Council.

Terms of the bonus pay proposal will be spelled out by an order of the Mayor and Council.

It is expected that the order will provide, generally, that all city employes of operating departments who are ordered to report for duty during emergencies between 9 p. m. and 5 a. m. shall be paid at the customary rate of the department in which they are employed, and in addition, will receive a bonus of one hour's pay at straight time.

Is Turned Down

The order, according to last night's understanding, will provide that supervisory or clerical workers would not be paid for overtime, but instead would be given time off equal to the overtime. If this is not possible, such workers would be paid at straight time for such overtime at the end of the fiscal year.

The order is not expected to include provisions for the payment of a lunch allowance during such emergency work.

Each department is expected to work out a solution, but it is not anticipated that even these informal agreements will set any definite amount.

A proposal for the payment of a bonus hour and a lunch allowance was made Monday by Street Commissioner John J. Long.

During a sympathetic discussion of the proposal, it was agreed that any such plan would have to be city-wide.

[illegible] Job Plan

City officials also began a lengthy discussion on the new job classification plan which was worked out as a result of a job study made by the Department of Employment Security.

There was some sentiment for making several changes in classification and also for adopting or rejecting the plan "as is."

A discussion on the classification plan is expected to be continued at Monday's pre-Council discussion period.

Slight Increase Noted In City Voting Rolls

City voting rolls, which have been dropping fairly steadily since the last election, began to inch forward during October.

City Registration Office records show that 11 new voters, six men and five women, were added to the rolls during the month.

The result was a net increase of two voters after the names of nine voters who died recently were removed from the rolls.

The 11 new voters were more than have been enrolled in any month during the past several years.

The quickening of interest in city registration is expected to increase during the next few months as candidates step up campaigning for the quadrennial election next year.

The City primary election will be held Tuesday, June 5, 1962, and the general city election will be held two weeks later on June 19. The newly elected Mayor and Council will take office during the first week of July.

A report by Mrs. Janet Trost, registration totaled 9,098 on October 31.

Included were 4,756 white males, 4,199 white females, 80 colored males and 63 colored females.

During the 1958 general election 8,131 votes were cast. This was 68.8 per cent of the 11,811 voters registered for the election.

Since 1958, mandatory five-year reviews have resulted in the dropping of those who failed to vote in either the primary or general election that year.
